WOMAN FIRES TWO SHOTS INTO HER LOVER

Mrs. Krauss Attempts to Kill Los Angeles Mining Man in His Office.

HE FALLS TO FLOOR, THUS SAVING LIFE

She Asserts Man Failed to Wed Her as He Has Promised for Two Years.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Daisy Turner Krauss, divorced wife of Dr. William Krauss of Memphis, Tenn., walked into the office of Franklin H. Griffith, a mining man, in the Story building, this afternoon, and after a short parley with Griffith claims was the victim of a series of attempts at blackmail, shot him twice. One bullet grazed his throat and the other imbedded itself again in the bone in the flesh of his right arm.

Neither woman is serious and after treatment at the Receiving hospital Griffith was removed to the Clara Barton hospital. Mrs. Krauss, who had been disarmed before she could empty her revolver, was placed under arrest and is now in the city prison with a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon against her.

PROMINENT IN MINING.

Franklin H. Griffith is prominent in mining circles. He is president of several mining corporations and has a high reputation in business and financial circles in California and elsewhere. He is a close friend of E. S. Shank, the local real estate man, and the two men jointly occupy the offices in the Story building.

The shooting today was the culmination of a succession of exciting chapters of which the life of Mrs. Krauss has been made up for the past two years, and which have culminated in a threat to kill Griffith. According to her version of today's action, Griffith snatched her, after which she says she shot in self-defense.

Griffith positively denies this, declaring he was not more than three feet from the woman during the parley and that she made no physical attack whatever against her or gave her any provocation for her action. Griffith says he will prove this by his partner, E. S. Shank, who witnessed the entire affair.

CAME UNDER ASSAULT NAME.

Griffith says that Mrs. Krauss arrived in town several weeks ago and registered at the Haystack hotel under an assumed name; that she forthwith called at his office and in the presence of Shank and two other men demanded that he marry her or face the alternative of being shot by her within twenty-four hours.

Griffith says that he declined then to have anything to do with the woman and that he left his office throughout the day. A few days ago, while walking through a downtown street, Griffith says the woman again accosted him and demanded an interview with him, he says he told her to go.

CLIMAX UNEXPECTED.

He says he told her that he would discuss their differences another day, but in the district attorney's office and that he was willing to do so at any time and place. He says she then said she would wait for him at the office and that he should come there.

HE WAS HIT TWICE.

Griffith, who was standing near the outer door, turned to walk into the private office. Some proposition of danger caused him to turn back and he saw the woman standing in the doorway with a revolver in her hand.

Griffith says he saw the woman standing in the doorway with a revolver in her hand. He says he saw the woman standing in the doorway with a revolver in her hand. He says he saw the woman standing in the doorway with a revolver in her hand.

MRS. KRAUSS' STORY.

At the police station Mrs. Krauss told the detectives that she had met Griffith here about two years ago; that he had agreed to marry her after she obtained a divorce from her husband, but he had given money by her to have it in his name; that she had refused to return the money to him and that he had threatened to kill her. She said that she had then decided to kill him and that she had done so.

Brothers and Sisters of "Sheriff Bob" Believe They Can Obtain Divorce for Him and Recover His Fortune which she pledged to pay. If she could fail in this, the whole contract is void and Chandler's fortune would be without more ado. On the other hand if Cavalieri lives up to the contract by liquidating the mortgage, other legal steps will have to be taken to nullify the assignment.

THINK DIVORCE EASY.

The Chandler family does not believe it will be difficult for Bob to obtain a divorce from his wife providing they can persuade him to take legal action, either in French or American courts. In the meantime, it is pointed out, Cavalieri must bring suit if she expects to realize on the paper Bob is alleged to have signed turning over his entire fortune to her. Chandler's fortune amounts in round figures to about $200,000. This sum, however, is proscribed over by his hard-headed financiers who were placed in charge of the young man's inheritance when his father and Uncle Beane died weeks ago. It was learned at the office of the Chandler estate, a copy of the ante-nuptial agreement signed by Chandler before two Parisian advocates was received by the trustees of the Chandler estate. They simply smiled, however, and asked the agreement, together with letters that have since been received praying "early payment."

USING HIM AS CATSPAW.

It was suggested today that Cavalieri may have used Bob to America to plead with the trustees of the estate to pay her "dowry" and provide her with funds to "galvanize" around the fashionable water places of Europe with the pretty Russian Prince Dolgorouff, who is described as having a "bushy beard" and two teeth. It will take something more than Bob's love impressioned pleas to move the trustees of the estate, however.

The situation seems to be that Chandler must either get the money he promised his bride or lose her. In connection with the marital mix-up of the young grandsons of John A. Astor, a message was received from John Armstrong Chandler, brother of the late Mr. Chandler, who is interesting. The message reads:

"Who's ready now?" Bob's answer has not been made public. John Armstrong Chandler is the most eccentric of the family and has once been in an asylum for the insane. Called upon of the split between Mr. and Mrs. Chandler did not surprise him. He said:

WELL KNOWN IN SOUTH.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 10.—Addies and other sensational episode of a divorce case involving Mrs. Daisy Turner Krauss, divorced wife of Dr. William Krauss of Memphis, Tenn., and her alleged lover, Franklin H. Griffith, a California mining broker, have reached the city. The shooting in Griffith's office, growing out of his alleged failure to give her the value of money in a business transaction, is the latest chapter in the story. The case is now being handled by the local courts. It is in the hands of the local courts that in the charge by Mrs. Krauss on November 11, 1909, in which she charged Dr. Krauss with adultery and trying to kill her and asked for a divorce. Dr. Krauss answered several weeks later, making many statements and counter-charges. The divorce suit has not been tried.

ACCUSED OF INTIMACY.

Griffith was mentioned in connection with Mrs. Krauss first when she went to Los Angeles a couple of years ago. His name was also mentioned in connection with the alleged battle between Dr. Krauss and Griffith, where she had been arrested, then dropped the charges and was openly with Griffith. The charges were too intimate.

friends of the latter in this city today. Arthur Hammerstein, who knew Cavalieri intimately when she was one of his father's song birds, simply smiled when asked if he had heard of the split. "Lina's actions are no surprise to me," he commented. "I knew this would be the outcome of the 'basis of frankness' romance. Cavalieri frequently stated to her friends that she did not love Chandler and would not have looked at him but for his money. I am confident she told Chandler the same thing before she married him. But of course when a man's heart is set on a woman, nothing matters. Cavalieri reports also had it that Cavalieri made it as another condition attached to her marriage that Chandler acknowledge the paternity of her 10-year-old son, whom the young American had never seen nor heard of."

HAS GROWN SON.

"While it had never before been published that Lina had a son almost half as old as herself, her friends know it," said Arthur Hammerstein. "It does not know the name of the boy or who his father really is, but I believe he is in Europe now. He was placed in a school on the continent, where his mother, I believe visits him frequently. Cavalieri's friend in New York was Mrs. Joseph Baskerville, the noted grand opera 'singer.' Mrs. Baskerville returned several weeks ago from a European trip, during which she visited the newly-married Cavalieri and Chandler in Paris. On her return to this country she pronounced the young couple an ideal pair. Chandler was wearing a rose-colored dream in their case, said Mrs. Baskerville. It was only a couple of days later that Mrs. Baskerville, busy working in her office in the Metropolitan Opera building, received a summons that led her to announce a sudden departure for Europe. She sailed and is thought to be with Cavalieri now in Paris.

Rob Chandler, looking pale and careworn, kept himself in seclusion today. So did Mrs. Richard Aldrich, his sister, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. William Astor Chandler. In fact only one statement was secured from the distraught young husband all day. "Keep away—get out—leave me alone—don't you see I don't want to talk!" was what he yelled in his best gutting-gut manner.

visitors of many decades ago used to rumble up the castle roads. All of Louisenances was an ecstasy of delight at the possibility of old-time scenes being lived over and the villagers joined gladly in making the affair a great success.

DU BARRY REMICS.

The Countess de Lancry herself decided to play the part of Du Barry. She had spent so much time collecting the genuine belongings of Du Barry, such as fans, jewels, perfume bottles and such like, that she had plenty of material at hand with which to carry out the deception. The oldest son of the countess played the part of Louis V. and Harold Sussman, who was the Duke de Richelieu. The sold his bath tub in which Du Barry used to bathe, and which is still in the castle, played an important part in the festivities. The pseudo Du Barry, who was charged by the Countess to see it just as the genuine Du Barry is reported in history to have done.

After dinner the enormous castle terrace on which Du Barry used to hold some of her dinners was cleared of chairs and tables and hidden musicians guided the toes of the dancers to a rhythmic accompaniment. The Princess amused all their friends by salutes at the expense of each other, just as Du Barry and Pompadour did. Mrs. Gozard, who has not thoroughly recovered from her operation, did not dance, however, and the courtiers gathered around her.

Moissant to Enter American Contests

Aviator Who Achieved Fame in Europe Coming to Belmont Park.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—John B. Moissant, the American aviator who recently achieved fame by his flight from Paris to London, according to a cablegram received today by J. C. McCarty, will enter the big international aviation tournament at Belmont Park in October. It is not known whether he will enter the international trophy but he will take part in general events and in all probability will be a contestant for prizes. The ends of the cars were seriously damaged, but no one was seriously injured.

CAVALIERI'S RISE MOST ARDUOUS AND SLOW

Diva, Now Friend of Dukes and Princes, Knows Pangs of Hunger

(By CHARLES HENRY MELTZOR.)

Lina Cavalieri. The women pardoned all except her face. This is a true story. It is the story as Lina Cavalieri told it to the writer, plainly and without airs. Lina Cavalieri was baptized in Cardinal Gibbons' titular church—Santa Maria, in Trastevere. She is the child of humble parents. They came to Rome some time before her birth. Till then they had lived in the provinces, hardly, meanly, but not unhealthfully. For in Italy the bright sun and the fair face of nature saddens even poverty.

SIMPLE AND HONEST.

Not that she would mind admitting it if it were true, but after all the many tragic and romantic episodes in her strange life she is very simple in her way and very honest. Her father was a workman, a little, at all superior to a mere hewer of wood. He had a few bare rooms in one of the houses beyond the Porta Salaria. Unhealthy rooms, no doubt. The kirts of the Campagna are fine fever beds. Of whom two have died. And they were poor, so poor, unless you have lived in Italy you can have no notion of how pitifully poor one may be without realizing it. But somehow they did live and the children went through a good school, where they were taught the rudiments.

CHEERED SELF BY SINGING.

Lina, like her mother (who was beautiful and blessed with a rare voice) used to cheer herself when all seemed dark by singing to the accompaniment of her guitar. She sang very prettily, although she had no training, and at last she attracted the benevolent attention of a fifteenth rate maestro—a master who acted as the conductor in a minor music hall.

Then Lina, who had barely just turned 12 had the misfortune to lose her father. He left her to wife and children penniless. What could they do? Ah, that was the worst time of all. Lina Cavalieri has not forgotten how it felt, though, to go hungry, as she did, for days and days—yes, till she all but starved.

60 CENTS A PERFORMANCE ICE.

You may imagine with what joy she accepted an offer made her at this crisis to sing "Romances" in that nastrino's Trastevere's music hall. They paid her about 60 cents a performance and all treated her, on the whole, kindly. These weeks later she found another engagement at a dollar a night in the Piazza Navona. So, step by step, she rose till she became a favorite at the Roman "Eden" near the Ponte Garibaldi. There she was paid almost as much as the great French "stars" were their royal weekly salaries of over $300.

She longed to rise. But she had always longed to rise above the vulgarity of the music hall. And some years later, when she was turning the heads of the grand dukes (and others) in St. Petersburg she met Louis Tetrakoff and the tenor, Marini. She sang for them. Marini told her that if she studied she would succeed in opera.

For nine months or so she worked under the tuition of Marini. Then she was engaged for the San Carlo, Naples, where she made her debut in "La Boheme."

From the San Carlo she went in turn to many Italian cities, singing the repertoires of Puccini and Verdi and Gioianno and Massenet and Mozart.

CREATED "THAIS"

In Milan, at the Dalborno, she created "Thais," which some two years ago she sang (in French) at the Grand Opera House in Paris. That was just after her first season at the Metropolitan, where her charm and her sensational story, her phenomenal acting and her voice, which was not lawless and her singing, which many did not admire.

Last season Lina Cavalieri took London by storm, when she sang "Tosca." As to her recent doings, have they not been recorded in all the newspapers?

GOV. PATTERSON IS OUT OF RACE

Tennessee's Executive Yields to Popular Clamor and Withdraws.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 10.—Governor Patterson formally withdrew from the gubernatorial race today. In a letter he said: "It seems that the continued appeals to passion and credulity have found judgment which neither fact nor persuasion can change, and that so long as I remain a candidate a considerable number of Democrats will not affiliate with the party and while not large comparatively, it is enough to imperil Democratic success in November. I do not wish to say that my desire for office is responsible for this condition or as furnishing an excuse to endorse a Republican candidate by the so-called independent Republican convention soon to be held in Nashville."

Drainage System Is Demanded in Russia

Cholera Plague Will Increase If Improvements Are Not Made.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 10.—According to a private letter received from the president of the Russian board of health, Professor Hubert, at a special meeting held by the board in St. Petersburg, to consider the increase in the cholera plague, it was declared that the fight against the disease absolutely will be hopeless, unless the city gets a modern drainage system and a new source of water supply, as otherwise the epidemic is sure to return each spring with increasing virulence.

Miss Schmidt yesterday. "I have dozens of dives that I practice, but I like this one that I perform with my hands outstretched."

The swimmer is by far the prettiest of the dives of the fair young swimmer, and displays the symmetric and graceful lines of her well rounded figure to good advantage. Miss Schmidt weighs 130 pounds. "I think I can make the swim across the bay easily," she said. "I have made arrangements for a launch to steam alongside me in case my strength should give out. I really haven't any fear of that, but the current is tremendously strong, and it is hard to buck against it even in the least bit. A year ago I determined to do something besides merely swim. I have lived in the water all my life, and I feel more at home in it than I do on land. I have only been performing fancy diving for the past year. It's great sport, but I will not be satisfied until I make the swim across the bay."

"Some of my friends have tried to deter me from it on account of the danger, but it does not seem dangerous to me. I have been longer in the water and I never tire. I made four miles yesterday and then came into the tank and dove for more than an hour. My actual dive is from 45 feet board. The higher the dive the better, I like it."

When asked how long it would take her to swim the distance across the bay, Miss Schmidt stated that she figured on two hours' time to make the swim.

Miss Schmidt is an advocate of the one-piece bathing suit for women and is distinctive in the surf or tank by the new suit introduced by Annette Kellermann.

LOOKS EQUAL TO FEAT.

Sturdy in appearance, the daring swimmer looks equal to the feat she is to perform this month. Her complexion is tanned by long exposure to the sun, and constant swimming has developed the muscles of her arms, making them large in proportion to her size. She is 5 feet 6 1/2 inches in height.

With her dark brown hair hanging over her shoulders and wearing the distinctive one-piece suit in the water, Miss Schmidt is both picturesque and strong in appearance. Her stroke is sure and long.

"My woman has ever attempted to swim the distance across the bay on account of the current," said Miss Schmidt. "A sea captain who was known to my family, and who was known to me many years ago, but the swim yet remains to be done by a woman. I am positive that I can accomplish it, and if I fail I will try until I do make it."

MRS. HARRIMAN IS TO TAKE LONG REST

She is Shaping Her Affairs to Go On Vacation Trip, Is Rumor.

C. T. Feghadd, twelve years associated with the late Mr. Harriman in a special confidential capacity, is a prominent broker in Wall street today stated that Mrs. Harriman has not withdrawn a dollar of capital from the great railroad and industrial enterprises identified with the name of HARRIMAN.

With the exception of Mrs. Harriman's disposal of 4618 shares of Guarantee Trust Company's stock, a Morgan syndicate, and advice to banking institutions, and the sale of holdings in the Equitable Life Assurance Society—both enterprises being such that only a master of finance like Harriman himself could handle—Mrs. Harriman has retained, it is understood, her stock in the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Wells-Fargo, Baltimore and Ohio, Railway Securities Company, National City Bank and other corporations.

In her attitude toward the Wall street properties, Mrs. Harriman has received the counsel and advice of Charles A. Peabody, who was Mr. Harriman's confidential lawyer.

Mr. Peabody is president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. Mrs. Harriman has been no time for a trip to Europe this year. Her yacht, Sultana, a modest craft, compared with others owned by the millionaires, has been in commission since July last at Mores Basin, Bay Ridge, but Mrs. Harriman has taken only two cruises in her, one to Bar Harbor and one to Newport. The old crew man the yacht, and their wages have gone on just the same as if the boat was the busiest craft in these waters.

AMAZING CRUSADE CARRIED ON BY COLONEL ROOSEVELT CAUSE OF COMMENT IN BIG NEWSPAPER Sayings and Doings of Former President Are Subject of Article in New York Evening Post

(From The Argonaut, Sept. 10.)

In its issue of August 26 the New York Evening Post, notable among the conservative newspapers of the country, printed an editorial article sharply critical of the sayings and doings of ex-President Roosevelt in the course of his Western trip. This article has attracted wide attention and has met with an exceptional measure of commendation from the conservative public. Day by day since its publication, the post has been flooded with letters from its readers expressing of the approval with added reflections upon the danger involved in Mr. Roosevelt's amazing crusade.

Because this article has attracted such wide attention and commendation, because it so completely declares conservative sentiment with respect to Mr. Roosevelt's recent activities, we herewith produce it in full. And to the end that readers may reach their own conclusions with respect to the facts in the case we give essential parts of Mr. Roosevelt's reply, with excerpts from the record beginning with Mr. Roosevelt's interchange of letters with Mr. Harriman in 1906 and ending with his speech at Oswatimbi, Kansas, last week.

ROOSEVELT'S PERFORMANCE.

We should like to think of Mr. Roosevelt's performance yesterday as those of the ever boyish. He reminds one of a college athlete here who, after graduation, simply can not live without the old heart-filling cheers, and so shows himself on the football field in order to hear the glad sounds once more. It is two years since Mr. Roosevelt has fed on the joys of the crowd in railroad stations, and yesterday he made up for long abstention by glutting. Yet, as we say, we should prefer to think of all this as comic. There is undoubtedly an amusing side to Mr. Roosevelt's vaudeville oratory. It recalls the political speaker preserved in the number of James Whitcomb Riley's verse, who Helt the banner up-ards from a train in the dust.

And cut loose on monopoly, and cussed and cussed and cussed.

But laughter can not help passing into anger and a sense of gross outrage, when the real significance of Mr. Roosevelt's car-and-haranguing is fully taken in. For here is a private citizen assuming that he has supreme political power. Here is an ex-President showing aside the actual President as if he were a truckman. Here is a man who forever chatters about the square deal, yet who treats his own friend and the chief of his own party with absolute unfairness, pushes himself forward as the only true fountain of justice, announces what "I will do" just as though his being elected President next time were a foregone conclusion, and bears himself throughout as a peculiarly repellent combination of demagogue and dictator.

BEYOND BAD TASTE.

The thing goes beyond a display of bad taste. At such it is shocking, but it is, besides, an exhibition of moral impudence. "I will make the corporations come to time," shouted Roosevelt to the mob. But did he not really mean that he would make them come down with the cash to elect him, as he did before? For a man with Mr. Roosevelt's proved record it is simply disgusting humbug for him to rant about the corporations upon whose treasuries he fawned when he was President and wanted their money for his campaign. Does he think that nobody has a memory which goes back to the life insurance investigations, and that everybody has forgotten the $50,000 taken from widows and orphans and added to Theodore Roosevelt's political corruption fund? Did he not take a big check from the Beef Trust, and give it to get it? And now he is going to make the corporations come to time? One can have respect for a sincere radical, for a honest fanatic, for an agitator or leader who believes that he is doing God's will; but it is hard to be patient with a man who talks big but acts mean, whose eye is always on the main chance politically, and who is in no friendship, no generosity, no principle, no moral scruple stand for a moment between himself and the goal upon which he has set his overmastering ambition.

SUCH WILD WORDS.

Such wild and whirling words as Mr. Roosevelt uttered yesterday are a curse to public life. They arouse passion without directing it. They give no one a clear idea of what the speaker means, except that he sought to inflame the crowd and make mischief. He fulminates against crookedness. Why not be specific? Whom does he mean? Even Mr. Roosevelt will not intend us to understand that he will be detective, police, magistrate, jury, judge, all in one, and will rule after every vulgar and swindler in the land. No his crooks are political crooks. What he wants the crowd to understand is that he is with them in their present wrath against men who go into politics to make money, or who are advanced by political corruption, or who are notorious as unscrupulous machine politicians. Yet this champion of purity, this roarer for political virtue, is the man who was for years, when in public life, hand in glove with the worst political corruptionists of his day; who, too, to Platt, who granted Quay, who paid court to Hanna; under him as President, Aldrich rose to the height of his power, always on good terms with Roosevelt; it was Roosevelt who, in 1906, wrote an open letter urging the re-election of Speaker Cannon, against whom mutterings had then begun to rise; it was Roosevelt who asked Harriman to come to the White House secretly, who took

NO PLEASANT DUTY.

It is no pleasant duty to say these things of Mr. Roosevelt. We had hoped that time and reflection had sobered him, and that his Western speeches would show him capable of taking an elevated political leadership. But whatever he may do in his present address, it is plain that he means to stir the popular heart by appeals in his very worst vein. His leading back into his old role is both indecent and dangerous. It is indecent because, in utter disregard of all propriety and of personal and political fair play, he rushes upon the next presidency as if it were already his, and boasts of the great things he is going to do; it is dangerous because the more the mob yells approval of his reckless speech, the more reckless it will become. It is evident that there are turbulent times ahead of the sober and steady people of this country in dealing with this man who came back to "help solve our problems," and is proceeding to do it by making them more difficult than before. There is nothing to do but to face him squarely and tell the truth about him. The task of his quality, the delight of the crowd, but it leaves sensible and patriotic citizens aghast. They are startled by the thought that we may fall into the hands of this brigand in whom self-seeking is so finely blended with hypocrisy.

ANSWER TO ARTICLE.

The Outlook of September 3 contains an answer to this article, dated Chicago, August 28, and signed by Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt begins by quoting part of the Post article. Then he declares that the Evening Post "is not in itself sufficiently important to warrant an answer," but that "as representing a class whose hostility it is necessary to reckon with in any general movement for decent government, it is worth while to speak of it." After describing this class as made up of wealthy people and of "practical hangers-on of wealthy people," Mr. Roosevelt goes on to say:

In the struggle for honest politics there is no more place for the liar than there is for the thief, and in a movement designed to put an end to the domination of the thief and little good can be derived from the assistance of the liar. Of course, the liar will be made to my use of this time. My answer is that I am using it more scientifically and descriptively because no other terms express the facts with the necessary precision. In the article in which the Post goes to the defense of those in present control of the Republican party in New York State whom it has affected to oppose in its editorial, the Evening Post, through whatever editor personally wrote the article, practiced every known form of mendacity.

ROOSEVELT CONTINUES.

Then, referring to the statement in the Evening Post's article of Roosevelt's invitation to Harriman to visit him secretly at the White House and of his taking money to buy votes in New York, and quoting his letter "you and I are practical men," Mr. Roosevelt goes on to say:

Not only in every important statement I have made, but in every statement I have written, I have been as plain as day. As far as I was concerned, every man who wrote the White House openly, and Mr. Harriman among them. I took no money from Mr. Harriman secretly or openly to buy votes or for any other purpose. Whoever wrote the article knew that this was the foulest and basest lie when he wrote the sentence.

ANSWERS "THE POST."

The statement of the Evening Post is not only false and malicious, it is also such that it could only have been made by a man who, knowing the facts, deliberately intended to pervert them. Such an art stands on a level of infamy with the worst act ever performed by a corrupt member of a legislature, or a city official, and stamps the writer with the same moral brand that stamps the habitual liar. Precisely every statement made . . . is a falsehood.

The article speaks of my having attacked corporations and . . . of my having sought to inflame the mob and make mischief. . . . It is but another instance of the peculiar baseness, the peculiar moral obliquity, of the Evening Post that it should pervert the truth in so shameless a fashion.

Now for some of the basic facts: From Theodore Roosevelt's speech at Oswatimbi, Kansas, August 31, 1910.

We must drive the special interests out of politics. That is one of our tasks today.

Corporate expenditures for political purposes, and especially such expenditures by public service corporations, have supplied one of the principal sources of corruption in our political affairs.

It is necessary that laws should be passed to prohibit the use of corporate funds directly or indirectly for political purposes; it is still more necessary that such laws should be thoroughly enforced.

It is particularly important that all moneys received or expended for cam-counted for, not only after election, but purposes should be publicly accounted for.

LETTER TO HARRIMAN.

From Theodore Roosevelt's letter of October 4, 1904, to Edward H. Harriman.

Now, my dear Mr. Harriman, you and I are practical men, and you are on the ground and know the conditions better than I do. If you think there is any danger of your visit to me causing trouble, or if you think there is nothing special I should be informed about, or no matter in which I could give aid, why, of course, give up the visit for the time being, and then, a few weeks hence, before I write my message, I shall get you to come down to discuss certain government matters not connected with the campaign.

From Edward H. Harriman's confidential statement to Sidney Webster.

About a week before the election in the autumn of 1904, when it looked certain that the State ticket would go Democratic and was doubtful as to Roosevelt himself, he, the President, sent me a request to go to Washington to confer upon the political conditions in New York State. I complied, and he told me he understood the campaign could not be successfully carried on without sufficient money, and asked if I could help him in raising the necessary funds, as the national committee, under control of Chairman Cortelyou, had utterly failed of obtaining them, and there was a large amount due from them to the New York State Committee. We talked over what could be done for Dewey, and finally he agreed that if found necessary he would appoint him as ambassador to Paris.

FUNDS RAISED.

With full belief that he, the President, would keep his agreement, I came back to New York, sent for Treasurer Bliss, who told me that I was their last hope, and that they had exhausted every other resource. In his presence I called up an intimate friend of Senator Dewey, told him that it was necessary in order to carry New York State that $200,000 should be raised at once, and if he would help I would subscribe $50,000. After a few words over the telephone the gentleman said he would let me know, which he did probably in three or four hours, with the result that the whole amount, including my subscription, had been raised.

The checks were given to Treasurer Bliss who took them to Chairman Cortelyou. If there were any among them of life insurance companies, or any other like organizations, of course, Cortelyou must have informed the President. I do not know who the subscribers were other than the friend of Dewey, who was an individual. This amount enabled the New York State Committee to continue its work, with the result that at least $50,000 votes were turned in the city of New York alone, making a difference of 100,000 votes in the general result.

Owner Explains to Judge, However, That Only the Bones "Took."

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—When H. Cohen, 430 Valencia street, a liver, applied to Police Judge Conlan this morning for the arrest of "John Doe" Bishop for hiring a horse and driving it to death in forty days, and he had aged fifteen years, the animal which was taken after Bishop had returned the horse to the livery stable.

The photograph showed scarcely anything but bones and a faint outline. Judge Conlan put on his glasses and examined the picture for some moments before he arrived at any sort of a conclusion.

"I don't understand," said he at last, "just why you had an X-ray photograph of this animal taken. It seems to me that a medical man might be able to make something out of it, but I can't."

COULD NOT MAKE SHADOW.

"That is not an X-ray," said Cohen. "That is a genuine photograph. The fact is that Romeo, the horse, was so thin when I got him back after forty days that he would not make a shadow on the plate. Nothing but the bones took. That is why you see only the skeleton, and that is why I want Bishop arrested."

Judge Conlan issued the warrant charging Bishop with a violation of section 337B of the Penal Code, which has something to do with refusing to pay livery hire.

According to the story of Cohen, Bishop hired the horse on July 25. He was to keep it for fourteen days. Instead he kept it for forty days. When Cohen finally got the horse back it was so thin that it could not stand erect.

"I brought the horse to town in a lumber wagon," said Cohen. "Then I had a photographer to take a picture of him."

Hoo Hoo Frown on Serving of Liquor

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—The Hoo Hoo, in annual convention today turned down a proposal to permit the serving of liquors at their banquets. The vote was decisive.

Thomas Griffin, a booster from Tacoma, made the proposal, but it was defeated overwhelmingly. About 500 members from all over the country are in attendance at the convention.

2 DAYS IN 'COOLER' AGE MORSE 15 YEARS

Authoritative Information. Says He was Gladly Afflicted Experience.

REFUSED TO "TURN TO WALL" FOR THE WARDEN

Punished for Giving Money to Prisoners About to be Discharged.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—Information from an authoritative source regarding the confinement of Charles W. Morse, the former New York banker, in the "cooler" in solitary confinement, has been reported here today, despite Warren Meyers' denial to the government to the contrary. It has been learned that Morse was put into solitary confinement and kept on a diet of bread and water for two days and after being taken out of the dungeon he collapsed in his cell and had to be carried to the hospital ward.

It was said today by one connected with the federal prison that Morse, after being taken out of the cell was a ghastly sight, and he had aged fifteen years. His moustache had been shaved off and he had to be carried to his cell.

GAVE AID TO PRISONERS.

The offense for which Morse had been put into the "cooler" was that he received money from persons on the outside and had distributed it to a few prisoners who were to be released shortly, to help them get a new start. He had given some money to another prisoner to give to a crippled Italian boy about to be released. The prisoner was seen slipping the money to the Italian boy and when questioned where the money came from, it developed it was Morse who was supplying it.

Morse was then sent for by Deputy Warden Harrison and confessed to having money. He was then ordered to "face the wall," a method of punishment much dreaded, and upon his refusal to comply with the order was sent to the dungeon and there kept in solitary confinement for two days on a diet of bread and water.

California Pioneer Is Dying in Illinois

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Colonel Isaac L. Elwood is said to be dying at his residence in De Kalb, Ill. Colonel Elwood has been ill since the death of his wife nine weeks ago. From the first no hope of his recovery has been entertained by his family.

Colonel Elwood is 77 years old. The illness from which he suffers attacked him after the funeral of Mrs. Elwood. It is of a paralytic nature. It followed a similar attack which he suffered last March at his winter residence in Talatka, Florida.

Colonel Elwood has been one of the leading men of Illinois since the '70's. He was a pioneer manufacturer of barbed wire, to which business he owes his fortune. He was born in Springfield, N. Y., August 3, 1833. He took part in the California gold rush of 1850 and later was a De Kalb county pioneer.

BOOSTERS MAKE MERRY ON 'PROSPERITY SPECIAL' BOUND FOR SACRAMENTO

Good Fellowship Marks Trip of Committee to Inland Cities and Ties of Friendship Are Strengthened

While the primary object of the Prosperity and Prosperity Committee's trip to Sacramento and Oroville was the creating of a closer tie between the people of the Sacramento Valley and the commercial interests of Alameda county, the excursion had an effect almost as important and quite as far-reaching as the members themselves substantially added to the boosting spirit which the committee has been fostering so faithfully since its inception two years ago.

The trip was replete with incidents evidencing the good fellowship of those who participated. Individual commercial competition was eliminated and each one only remembered that he was working for the good of his community and the knitting together of the people of our great western empire.

CLAY AS AUCTIONEER.

It was in the baggage coach that Clay, as an auctioneer, excelled himself. Million Mazon's hat was unceremoniously snatched from its owner's head and as unceremoniously auctioned off by the irrepressible booster for two dollars. A baby's rattle and teething ring was knocked down to Fred Reed for $11, while a bottle of scent which the donor produced from some mysterious corner was run up to something like five dollars—too insignificant to satisfy the insatiable greed of Auctioneer Clay, who retained it himself in disgust.

"FAKE" TELEGRAM.

One of the unluckiest jokes ever perpetrated was that of forging and uttering a false telegram purporting to be from the "Wednesday" ball game as being nine to two in favor of Portland. The message, prepared elaborately, bore all the earmarks of being donor produced from some mysterious corner was run up to something like five dollars—too insignificant to satisfy the insatiable greed of Auctioneer Clay, who retained it himself in disgust.

The effect of the visit was probably more directly noticeable in the county exhibit building at the State Fair than at any other place. The very fact that Alameda county possessed its own structure while other counties were represented by built more or less diminutive situated in the general exhibition building attracted attention to the product of the county surrounding the bay cities, which individually alone made possible. This was emphasized when on Wednesday and Thursday evenings the electric light plant at the fair failed at 10 o'clock, leaving all in darkness with the exception of the Alameda county exhibit, lighted by an independent gaslight system.

ATTRACTS ATTENTION.

The incident attracted attention and it was rumored vaguely that somehow the Oakland boosters were at the bottom of the mishap. Only the deepest pretensions of innocence from such men as Dr. C. B. S. Cloy, Supervisor Fred W. Foss, Pat Kitch, Mayor Frank K. Mott and sundry others whose reputations are spotless even at far distant from their home city, saved the entire delegation from being branded as unscrupulous promoters who would stop at nothing to further their aims as to civic exploitation.

Drummers to Play Charity Ball Game

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—The San Francisco Commercial Travelers and Pacific Coast Commercial Travelers will play a game of ball on the St. Ignace grounds Sunday afternoon for charity. Thirteen hundred tickets have already been sold. A number of members of the two organizations will act as peanut vendors to help swell the receipts. Among them will be: John Freed, Ernest Dunn, Louis Pels, Arnold Goodfriend, Mike Barry, Barney Hirschberg, Sam Breyer and Al Enquist.

Turn Vereiners to Hear Singing Section

The members and friends of the Oakland Turn Verein are interested in the coming event to be held on Sunday evening, September 18, at Germania hall, 824 Webster street. On this evening the singing section will appear and give a concert. This organization in competition with six other societies, won the first prize, the Silver trophy, at the big Singfest recently held at San Francisco under the direction of Prof. G. Albrecht.

VETERAN RANGER IS TO GO BACK TO THE WILDS

Will Again Become Member of the Fighting Squad in Texas.

LONGS TO WEAR HIS BIG "SHOOTING IRONS"

Four Years as Revenue Agent, Minus His Guns, was Enough.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 10.—Captain J. W. ("Bill") McDonald, who signed from the command of the State Rangers company four years ago to accept the office of state revenue agent, will again become a member of the band of fighting men with whom he served for more than a quarter of a century. Preparations are being made by Adjutant-General Newton to reorganize the Rangers service. A place will be made for Captain McDonald, and it is probable he will be given back his old command.

The veteran frontiersman is anxious to get back "on the firing line." There was not enough excitement in his present job to suit him. Another thing that worried him is that he was obliged to lay aside his "shooting irons" when he quit the Rangers to take the job of state revenue agent.

REMOVED WEAPONS.

It did not occur to him when he accepted the job of revenue agent that he would have to cease carrying pistols. He continued to wear them for several days after he had received his appointment. Governor Campbell heard of it and called him into his office.

"Bill, I hear you are still carrying your guns," said the Governor.

"Why, certainly, Governor. You know I could not get along without 'em."

The Governor told him it was in violation of the law for him to carry weapons now.

"But, Governor, I don't know what to do without those guns. If I did not have them on some one might throw me down and take my tobacco away from me," pleaded Captain McDonald.

He discarded the weapons, but it was several months before he quit wearing the belt.

Musicians Fail to Get Amendment to Charter

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—The amendment to the charter proposed by the Musicians' Union, which would get on the ticket, the Registrar having reported that the petition for its submission lacks the requisite number of legal signatures. The amendment provided for the levying of a special tax of 1 cent on each $100 of assessed property valuation to pay for music in the public parks, also for the creation of a music commission to have charge of the expenditure of the fund. The only way the proposed amendment can get on the ticket now would be by recommendation of the Board of Supervisors, and this would have to be made tomorrow.

'MARSE HENRY' SAYS ROOSEVELT IS LIKE BRYAN

Editor Watterson Rises to Make a Few Pointed Remarks.

TO SAVE REPUBLICANISM
BY BRYANIZING IT

Companions on the Voyage Are Garfield and Pinchot.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Colonel Henry Watterson created a decided sensation among the distinguished guests assembled to celebrate the thirty-seventh anniversary of Commodore Perry's victory today by giving out a statement that Theodore Roosevelt resembled Bryan in all points, that the former President intends to save the Republican party by Bryanizing it and that Roosevelt was trying his best to beat out Taft.

"The Colonel is as open as the day," said Colonel Watterson. "He leaves no one in doubt as to his intentions. His route is laid, his plans are set, his terms are with his very tongue. He has his exits and entrances fitted to the pre-arranged line of travel and triumph. His companions in the voyage are even Pinchot and Garfield. Their objective point—well, if Taft does not get out of the way, he'll have to, though all of us are agreed that he may serve out the rest of his term."

BACK LIKE A DUCK.

"Fiducial and abuse," said Colonel Watterson further. "Squally, fall from the Colonel's back like water from a duck's back. All things that are great are simple. The Roosevelt scheme is first to Bryanize the Republican party and, under cover of the issue of the new nationalism, righteous ness in public and the setting of the man above the machine, the chairman of the Aegan stables and the mendicant of the lot of the lowly and the poor to sweep the country, though daring is a good scheme of practical politics conceived and brought forth by a man of rare sagacity and splendid executive ability."

"If it is to be headed off, the real backbone and muscle of Republicanism, the protective tariff system must take the field and who shall say that a man so full of invention, so full of resource, so full of energy and so full of action, but not already given the blood and brains of Republican leadership, the assurance that their interests shall be duly cared for, when Teddy comes marching home."

POLITICIANS COWARDLY.

"Politicians as a rule are a cowardly set; without regard to tendencies or consequences, they follow what seem to be the multitude and from now on the Republican leaders will gather about Roosevelt. They argue that he alone can save the Republican party. He proposes to do it by Bryanizing. The Roosevelt manifesto at Oswego, Wis., is a carefully analyzed, as good Bryan gospel as the Commager himself could expound."

No More Joy Rides
For City Officials

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 10.—No let any city employee go joy riding in his motor car if he dares. Or on a motorcycle either or with a municipal horse and buggy, for that matter.

An ordinance making it a misdemeanor for any city employee or any other person to use any city vehicle for other than city business was passed by the council last night. It also provides that city vehicles be locked up at night, in addition to being held in a garage or employee shall lose his job for violating the ordinance.

Alleged British Nobleman Is Arrested on Charge of Passing Many Bad Checks

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Claiming to be an English nobleman and giving as references the cream of Burlington society, James Bathgate, alias J. W. Partlett, after passing fictitious checks and securing the police say, about $300, was taken into custody tonight.

Bathgate swindled the principal apartment house where he registered, to include a few days and paid his bill with spurious checks, receiving, in many instances, money in change. For several days Detectives Drolett and Sullivan have been shadowing him and say they have a complete case against him.

John P. Boden was arrested in Oakland tonight by local detectives on two warrants, sworn to on August 2, charging him with passing fictitious checks. The complainants are A. G. Riehart, who claims to have been defrauded out of $100, and W. J. Robertson, who says he lost $87. Boden is said to have been in trouble before, having been arrested in Detroit.

PETITION FILED TO PROBATE HIS WILL

Late Henry Beckman Leaves
Large Estate Near Lodi
Valued at $75,000.

STOCKTON, Sept. 10.—A petition to probate the will of the late Henry Beckman, who left a large estate near Lodi, was filed by his son, Theodore H. Beckman, today. The petitioner makes no approximate estimate of the value of the estate left by his father, but it is believed to be worth at least $75,000.

The estate consists principally of improved farming land, 1000 acres in the most productive section of the county. The property is disposed of as follows:

Margaret, Lomlin and Addine, children of a deceased son, get 146 acres of improved land to be kept in trust for them until the youngest reaches the age of majority, at which the land and its accretions will be divided equally among them.

The petitioner, Theodore H. Beckman, is bequeathed a large ranch and one-half of the mules, horses and farming implements of the testator on the condition that he pay $300 a year to the widow of the decedent.

A limitation is placed upon the inheritance of a third son, George V. Beckman. He is given a ranch for his natural life, but his ownership terminates at death. According to terms of the will, when the son dies one-third of the property shall go to his wife and two thirds to his children. There is a further condition that the recipient shall pay the widow of the testator the sum of $200 a year.

In addition to her indirect interest in the property disposed of, as named in the foregoing, Mrs. Margaret Beckman, wife of the testator, is given an undivided one-half interest in a large ranch and at her death, which goes absolutely to a daughter, Eva M. Beckman. The daughter also gets at present the second one-half of the property bequeathed to her mother.

It is stipulated that if any of the children shall contest the will or attempt to interfere with its provisions they shall lose their inheritance and receive $10 each.

Baldwin To Make
Trial Flight Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Captain J. Baldwin, who has deserted the balloon for the aeroplane and who intends to make a flight across the bay from Oakland to San Francisco in his Curtiss biplane will make a series of tests this morning at Elmhurst where he has his flying machine. Baldwin recently made an unsuccessful attempt to fly from Fort Baker to San Francisco.

Baldwin made his reputation in aeronautics with the balloon. His first public ascension being made in 1894 when he carried Lucia Green, then with The Examiner, and a bridal couple several miles through the air in two balloons lashed together.

The couple were married before leaving the ground and made their honeymoon trip through the air in the double balloon. Baldwin and Miss Green accompanying one car while the newly wedded couple occupied the other. Since that time Baldwin has followed aeronautics constantly.

His flight today near Melrose will be with the intention of studying the air currents preparatory to a flight across San Francisco bay.

FEEDING OF KITTY IS LOVE TRIBUTE

Soldier Fiance Leaves Woman
Maltese Cat Which Gives
Her Inspiration.

Twenty-five years ago John Harding made good-by to his sweetheart, Miss Mary O'Dowd, in Brooklyn, N. Y., and went with a filibustering expedition to Cuba. Harding, wounded in one of the many small battles of the campaign, sickened and died. Miss O'Dowd moved to California, and the last twenty years has been living in Oakland.

The only remembrance of John Harding that Miss O'Dowd had was a Maltese cat which John had rescued from the Hudson river and which he gave Miss O'Dowd to keep for him.

This cat gave Miss O'Dowd the idea that the best way to honor the memory of her soldier sweetheart was not to erect a marble monument to his memory, but to feed the homeless cats of her neighborhood.

Miss O'Dowd, from her home on Twenty-second street in Oakland, between Telegraph and Broadway, has for the last sixteen years appointed herself the custodian of all stray cats.

For that period, she has purchased meat and milk, gone forth to the streets, called the cats of the neighborhood and fed them.

The cats know her call, a soft hiss, and when Miss O'Dowd appears on the street and gives the signal, cats from all over that section of the town come from cock fences, from dry goods boxes, from the gutters and from the stables, and all knowing it is their feeding time.

Miss O'Dowd starts her operations on Twenty-second street, in front of a creamery at the intersection of Twenty-second and Valley streets. There she feeds the felines of the neighborhood about ten o'clock at night.

From there she goes to Broadway, Berkeley, and in answer to her call soon appear, as if by magic, and receive their nightly meal.

From Broadway Miss O'Dowd goes to Telegraph avenue, and there supplies the homeless cats of that section with meat and milk, returning to her home at midnight, well satisfied that she has observed the memory of John Harding in the best method possible.

Y. M. T. ENDS BIG CONVENTION HERE

Wm. J. Hennessy of Oakland Is Elected Supreme
President.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—With approximately ten hours of session yesterday, the supreme council of the Young Men's Institute, which was in convention in this city for the past week, brought their 1210 convocations to a close last night.

A reorganization of the order in the United States was accomplished at the meeting yesterday. The membership by the now, is divided into four grand jurisdictions, instead of three, as was previously the case. The grand councils now comprise: Pacific, representing the states of California, Pennsylvania, consisting of that state, New Jersey, West Virginia, Maryland, Ohio, Delaware, Virginia and District of Columbia; Indiana jurisdiction, comprising the states of Indiana, Illinois and Michigan; and Kentucky jurisdiction, representing the states of Kentucky and Tennessee. Councils in other sections than the above will be known as detached councils.

Representatives to the grand councils must in the future be the supreme council in the work of organization. A new fund of $6000 was voted for the purpose of organization.

During the afternoon recess, the visitors were entertained by the local members on an automobile excursion trip through the city and out to the ocean beach. Lunch was served at the Cliff House. The parade last evening was led by the visiting delegates from a grandstand reserved for their use.

As the final and most important business of the convention, the representatives of the council elected the supreme officers for the next two years. The installation was conducted by Past Supreme President L. E. Mahan and W. H. Gallagher and J. A. Backlund. Those installed were William J. Hennessy of Oakland, supreme president; Robert T. Hulse of Kentucky, first supreme vice-president; J. J. Lino, second supreme vice-president; C. A. Slinger of Indiana, supreme secretary; M. J. McCrea of Pennsylvania, supreme treasurer; A. L. Vail of Maryland and M. J. Scanlon of Indiana to act as supreme directors, in conjunction with the supreme officers.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop D. O'Donoghue of Louisville was chosen supreme chaplain.

18 Killed, 32 Wounded In Nicaraguan Battle

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, Sept. 10.—Eighteen men were killed and thirty-two wounded during the fight which followed the refusal of the Madriz steamer to land the government forces at San Jorge, the lake port of Rivas, on September 4.

The Victoria, which fled to San Carlos after the fight, has surrendered and is now at Granada. She was badly damaged by shots from the government steamships Progresso and Noventuria.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 10.—The latest opposition to the new regime under General Estrada, the provincial president, has ceased with the surrender of General Fernando Rivas with 1000 men and eleven cannons.

CARNIVAL ENDS 'DAWN OF GOLD'

Great State Fair at Sacramento
Ends in Blaze of Mirth
and Glory

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 10.—The eight days of the greatest state fair in the history of the state closed tonight in a carnival of mirth and merriment. The final chapter of Sacramento's first fiesta of the Dawn of Gold was celebrated tonight at the fair the grounds by the bands arrayed in dominoes and grotesque apparel. Among them were participants garbed in the costume of the miners of '49.

The attendance for the week of eight days is estimated tonight to have been 107,000. This is nearly three times the attendance last year, which was approximately 29,000.

Secretary J. A. Fletcher of the State Board of Agriculture said tonight that the number of exhibits this year had been larger than ever before. He commented especially upon the exhibits of agricultural machinery from California and said that these two departments particularly excelled any exhibits that had previously been made on the coast.

Chairman George W. Jettler of the State Board of Agriculture said tonight that the number of exhibits this year had been larger than ever before. SENATE CONTROL BY REGULARS THREATENED Fall Elections Likely to Change Complexion of Upper House of Congress.

DEMOCRATS HAVE GOOD CHANCE FOR BIG GAINS

Heaviest Loss of "Stand Pat" Faction Will Be Leadership of Aldrich.

(By RALPH E. WHITESIDE.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—While it has been conceded for some time by observant politicians that the next House of Representatives was lost to the regular Republicans, they have confidently expected to retain control of the Senate. But the tide has turned, and the hands of a Democratic-insurgent coalition.

Upon the results of the elections this fall a third of the Senate must depend for their re-election to the upper house. Of the thirty retiring Senators, nine have already removed themselves from a possibility of membership in that body. Six of them are regular Republicans, and three are Democrats. The list is as follows: Aldrich, Rhode Island; Burrows, Michigan; Flint, California; Hale, Maine; Piles, Washington; and Warner, Missouri, regular Republicans, and Senators Daniel, Virginia; Kney, Mississippi; and Tallaferrro, Florida, Democrats.

REGULARS FROM NEW ENGLAND.

Of this lot Aldrich and Hale will in all probability be succeeded by the Senate by Republicans as regular as themselves.

Sensor Burrows will be succeeded by Charles E. Townsend, who has been a conservative insurgent in the House of Representatives. The successor of Senator Flint, a Republican, will be A. G. Spalding, the baseball magnate, who is counted as a regular Republican, although he has shown some progressive tendencies and independence.

The successor to Senator Piles of Washington will be decided at the primaries this month, the chances being about even between Judge Thomas H. Burke, a regular Republican, and Representative Miles Poindexter, one of the radical insurgents of the House.

In Missouri the probabilities are that a Democrat will succeed Senator Warner. None of the Democratic seats will be lost in their party, but militant insurgents will take each vacant seat.

Representative Gronna of North Dakota has been named by the Republicans to succeed to the place left vacant by the death of Martin J. Johnson, who was an out-and-out Republican, while Gronna is an insurgent.

DEFEAT THREATENS SENATORS.

Ten of the thirty members—all Republicans but one—who ask for reelection within the year face a possibility of defeat. One of them is Senator Burdick of Minnesota. Another is Senator Burkett of Nebraska, who went to the edge of the insurgent ditch and then turned tail.

Sensors Bulkeley of Connecticut, Carter of Montana, Depew of New York, Dick of Ohio, Nixon of New Jersey, Nixon of Nevada and Scott of West Virginia, all regular Republicans, compose the balance of the list. A third of the Senate of Tennessee is the "stand pat" Democrats.

Out of this number the Democrats have a distinct chance to make gains in the Senate. Senator Burkett faces a Democratic State administration, and there was a Democratic victory two years ago when he attempted to defeat G. B. N. Hitchcock, Democrat. Senator Burdick, while still claiming victory for his banner, is leading a foreboding hope, in the opinion of his friends.

Sensor Carter of Montana already has a close legislature which may be turned over to the enemy.

DEFEW BETWEEN MILLSTONES.

Sensor Depew is between the millstones of a Republican factional fight in New York.

Sensor Nixon of New Jersey has a goodly field of candidates against him in his own party and the Democrats of the State are waking up.

Sensor Nixon already faces a legislative with twenty-five Democrats in the majority on joint ballot, while Senator Scott lives in a State that is usually affected in the Senate.

Sensor Fraser, the Democratic Senator from Tennessee, is caught in a factional fight in his own party and stands a chance of being supplanted.

It is plain to be seen from this early line-up that Senator Burdick, Carter, Beveridge, Depew, Dick and Nixon will be lucky to return to the Senate. Should the Democrats take these six seats and no more, and lose none of their present membership, they would increase their membership to thirty-nine and reduce the Republican majority from 26 to 14.

Of the remaining members to be elected there are seven Republicans, two Democrats and two insurgents. All of them now appear to have clear sailing for re-election.

The great loss of the regulars will be in leadership. So far as can be seen now there is no one to take the place of "Boss" to be vacated by Aldrich.

Forty-Five Babies on Board Transport

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Early tomorrow morning the army transport Sherman, Captain Linnam, is expected to arrive from Manila, Nagasaki and Honolulu.

At 2 o'clock September 3, no regular organization of troops was in the Sherman from the Philippines, but there are a number of casuals, sick and injured soldiers and a few military prisoners. Besides the usual large number of cabin passengers, the total number of passengers on board being 1,000.

Among the passengers are Major J. A. Randolph, captain of the 8th Infantry; Major G. M. Trevelyan of the medical corps; Captain H. B. Dixon of the Twelfth Cavalry; Ill. Captain Kent Nelson, medical corps; Captain C. B. Drake, Fourteenth Cavalry; Lieutenant-Commander Gatewood S. Lincoln, United States navy.

Among the passengers from Honolulu are Captains W. O. Hollbrook, W. E. Sales, J. M. Jenkins and W. B. Forsyth, Lieutenant C. L. Morrison and J. S. McCleary and E. M. Bechtel of the engineering corps.

There are forty-five babies among the passengers of the Sherman, every one having been born in the Philippines during the last year or so.

FORMAL FALL OPENING AND EXHIBITION of WOMEN'S WEAR AT WOOD'S

Every day now forces upon you the necessity of getting your Fall Suit. The question naturally arises in your mind: "Where can I get the very best suit for the sum of money I want to spend?"

It would be logical to suppose that you could answer this question best to your own satisfaction in some store which makes a specialty of producing and selling suits of a standard quality and known reliability.

Our claim that we manufacture, ourselves, and sell to you direct, the very finest Fall garments from $25 to $15 that can be secured at their various prices challenges you to come and see if it is so.

We want you to—we invite your closest scrutiny and are very willing to let you carefully look into the details of the production of these splendid man-tailored, hand-tailored, well-tailored suits.

Fall Suits

There are a great number of them to select from—and more are continually arriving from New York city by express. The newest styles are beautifully developed in them—the skirts are belted or banded in the very latest manner, the coats embody many new features and the materials are fresh from the mills—serges, rough mixtures, Scotch tweeds, broadcloths, and some others. In every way you will find these new suits worthy of your choice and purchase.

The prices range from

$25 to $60

Every woman's garment is sold with a guarantee of absolute comfort in wear and satisfaction in appearance.

New Fall Dresses

A supply of beautiful creations, all late styles, has been received and are on exhibition. These dresses are made of broadcloths, prunellas, and serges. Cut in Dutch peasant style with moderate hobble effects. They are prettily trimmed with embroidery and silk; two of the main features is the Dutch neck and short sleeves which are so popular now.

Some of the colors are seagreen, Naples green, fir green, navy, pale blue, black, redwood, maroon, chestnut brown, light brown, tan and sage.

The prices range from

$15 to $25

The Millinery Department

is growing in favor with the women so rapidly that we wonder where it's going to end. Scores of new shapes and trimmed hats are put up for sale every week, but disappear so quickly that we are constantly scheming to secure new models to take their places. The hats now on display form one of the prettiest exhibitions you ever saw.

AVOID DIVORCE IS WARNING TO AGED

Couple Married More Than 25 Years Are Parties to Suit; Graham Gives Advice.

In ordering that Rebecca Swartz be sent funds for her transportation to this city from Chicago to defend a suit for divorce brought against her by Max Swartz, an aged junk dealer, Judge Graham yesterday scored the growing custom among old couples of becoming divorced. He said:

WHAT GRAHAM SAYS.

"The parties to this cause have been married for over a quarter of a century, the plaintiff is a man nearly seventy years of age, his wife a few years his junior; there are four grown children the issue of the marriage. It is almost impossible to understand why people who are about to depart into the Valley of the Great Beyond should resort to the divorce court to terminate the solemn contract of marriage. In many, many cases there is some foundation for the severance of the marriage tie, but when people have nearly reached their allotted full four-score of years and have raised families, courts should pause before granting a divorce, and insist that defendants be given full, fair and ample opportunity to be present in court in person and be granted every chance to make every possible showing in the presentation of their defense."

Swartz sued for divorce on the grounds of desertion when his wife went to Chicago two years ago without his permission. When his wife heard that he had started an action

POPE'S DELEGATE ENJOYS MISSION

Cardinal Vannutelli Expresses Pleasure at Trip to Eucharistic Congress.

MONTREAL, Sept. 10.—Cardinal Vannutelli, envoy extraordinary of Pius X to the twenty-first international eucharistic congress at Montreal, declared today that he could not recall a more pleasant mission than the one terminating when he imparted the papal benediction to probably the greatest assemblage of Catholics ever gathered in North America. "Tell the people of the United States," he said, "that I have been deeply affected by the extraordinary manifestations of loyalty and devotion to the Holy See during the eucharistic congress, in which so many of the people of that country participated. It is particularly gratifying to recall the cordial attitude of those who are not of our faith. And the Holy Father will be pleased to learn all this from me."

EXPLOSION BURNS MAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Frank Tuberman of 847 Eddy street was badly burned about the face and hands today morning by an explosion of gas when he undertook to light a gas stove in his home. He was taken to the Central Emergency hospital.

John E. from Evelyn Sutherland, desertion.

CHINA FINISHES HER 98TH TRIP

Veteran Captain Experienced the Finest Weather in Half-Century Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—In all the experience of Captain Felle as commander of trans-Pacific steamers the voyage of the liner China, finished this morning when the familiar vessel came through the Golden Gate simultaneously with the rising of the sun, was the most remarkable for the fine weather that accompanied the steamer all the way across the Pacific and back to this home port. It was the ninety-eighth round trip of the China. From the time the steamer left here on July 6, to the moment of her arrival back this morning only the finest of weather was experienced, with smooth seas and sunny skies.

The China came home flying the commodore's flag of Captain Felle at the mast. The commander has won the right to fly that white-starred pennant by nearly half a century of service with the Pacific Mail Company, and Captain Felle appears to be good for as many more years. Chief officers have sailed with him and been promoted to commands in all kinds of steamers, but not only did places "Ninety-fathom Dan" in the China.

BIG PASSENGER LIST.

There were 135 cabin, 35 second-cabin and 81 Asiatic steerage passengers in the China, which was five days and eighteen hours from Honolulu. Chinese students bound for Eastern colleges and schools made up more than the number in the first cabin.

Famous Human Orchid Becomes Divorcee Waif Despite Great Wealth

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—By a court action yesterday whereby Mrs. Eleanor Milbank Anderson Tanager obtained a divorce, the famous human orchid, became a divorcee waif despite her millions upon millions in the strong boxes of New York, and as the only heir to the Bryant Park Studio Building, in which are clustered the American masters of art, and which also shelters the famous Beaux Arts Cafe.

Betty, who is only 5, is being reared here by chemical formula and prescription so that she will live to inherit the Milbank fortunes of $25,000,000, now in the possession of her grandmother, Mrs. Abraham Archibald Anderson, who was the Hindu on the ground that they were liable to become public charges in this country.

O. G. Freeman, formerly a well-known purser in the Pacific Mail and Togo Kisan Kishia companies, and son of O. K. Freeman, dean of the corps of trans-Pacific pursers, returned in the China from the Philippines, where he has lived for the last seven years.

Of the China's cargo from the Orient 570 tons are consigned to this city, 750 tons are for overland points, 23 tons are for Central America and Mexico and 1 ton is for Los Angeles firms. The China was in her slip at pier 44 by 9 o'clock this morning.

It is hinted that in this antiseptic home Tanner became disillusioned and later annoyed when almost every action of his was criticized as being a menace to the sterilized atmosphere. Now society is wondering whether Betty's name also may not be changed like her mother's to Anderson or even to the family name of Milbank. But Betty

ARRANGE PROGRAM FOR BIG CONCERT

Music, Song and Story to Be Given at Grace Methodist Church.

With a program of music, song and story arranged by the committee, a series of the concert to be given next Tuesday evening, September 13, at Grace Methodist Church, thirty-fourth and Market streets, anticipates that it will be a most successful affair.

The program to be rendered is as follows: Piano solo, Miss Ethel Long; baritone solo, G. C. L. Evans; violin solo, Miss Viola Rich; monologue, Miss Helen Wood; orchestra quartet, Madeline Jenkins, Robert, Miss Jenkins, Mr. Madeline Jenkins, Miss Irene Madeline; duet, Madeline Evans and Robert; reading, Miss Edna Wright; piano solo Miss Long; bass solo, Charles F. Keeling; cornet solo, Miss Fettes Jenkins; recitation, "The Kitchen Clock," Miss Wood; tenor solo, Robert Hiding, with viola obligato by Miss Rich, "The Flying Flag," First Christian Church orchestra.

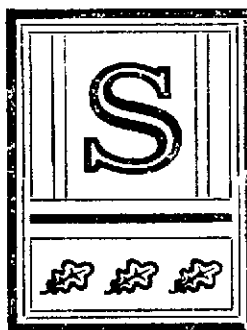

Thrown by His Horse Officer Breaks Skull

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Mounted Policeman J. J. Hurry, who was stationed at Market and Mason streets tonight, was thrown from his horse as the result of the animal's hoof being caught in the car track. Hurry sustained a fractured ankle. He was taken to the Central Emergency hospital.

He doesn't know anything about it. The air in a court room is far from antiseptic and mamma wouldn't think of taking Betty outside her germ-proof surroundings. Grandfather is the famous American artist and New York clubman.

Juramentado Clubs Are the Latest Things

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—In politics the newest thing is the organization of Juramentado clubs.

Now, to the ordinary reader that does not mean much. But let me explain the origin of the word and its application will be apparent in the present political situation.

It was down in the Sulu archipelago, and old Diego Mendoza was Governor of a Spanish colony that lived fairly at peace with the Sultan of Sulu and his musselman subjects. But among those subjects were certain fanatics who swore a holy oath that in so many months or years or weeks—whenever their affairs were in order and the spirit moved them—they would draw bolo, wade in and slaughter, for the glory of the prophet, as many Christians as they could slash before death caught up with them in their holy fury.

Every little while one of these merry gentlemen would explode in the midst of Don Diego's Spaniards as "shotter offul," as Little Johnny used to say. Don Diego would protest to the Sultan, and the Sultan would lift protesting but impotent palms and say:

"I can do nothing. That murderer was a Juramentado. He was beyond control."

Well, grim old Don Diego stood a good deal of this till, after an exceptionally gory outbreak on the part of a fanatic, a Spanish man-of-war drew up alongside the Sultan's city and began bombarding with all its guns. The Sultan rushed to Don Diego Mendoza crying:

"What does this mean? Stop that bombardment of my city!"

"Ah," replied Don Diego, lifting protesting but impotent palms, "I can do nothing. That mariner is a Juramentado. He is beyond control!"

And now you see how the name fits those clubs. They are formed for cutting and slashing. And when Walter Parker or Jere Burke or John Lynch or Johnny Mackenzie or the other captains of politics are appealed to to stop the slaughter of the ticket they will lift protesting but impotent palms and say:

"These clubs are Juramentados. We can do nothing!"

How the Game Had Changed

For years on years, in Los Angeles Tom Savage, with the long scar on his cheek, had bossed the toughest section, fixing up tickets and votes to suit himself. Things went Republican or Democratic, as he wanted them. The watchers at the polls were terrorized and did not dare say a word in protest.

This year those in charge of politics hired university boys as watchers—boys from the football squad and the gym. When things began to warm up and it was time to fix the count, Tom Savage and some of his followers came around to the polling booths. Seeing the young college men on watch Tom said with his most impressive growl:

"What's youse doin' around here? Git, or I'll make y' git!"

The university lads made no comment except to throw Tom and his followers through the window. Tom came back once with a rush. Out he went again. He did not return, and the count of ballots went on undisturbed. He hasn't yet quite made up his mind what new element has entered politics, and why it is he has lost control.

The Bear and Honored Departed

Sidney M. Van Wyck of this city, who has been called "the only male member of the Daughters of the Confederacy," and who was Gavin McNab's unsuccessful candidate for chairman of the Democratic State Convention, is an orator of a good deal of force and ability. But they are telling of an amusing slip he made when bursting into speech at the local Democratic convention—which convention, by the way, instructed Theodore Hall to vote for Van Wyck for chairman at Stockton.

However, Van Wyck was rolling along in a full tide of oratory, and, in true Democratic fashion, calling up the past glories of the party, there being few present glories to refer to. The heroes of other political days rose before his mind, and he said impressively:

"I will call to your minds as an inspiration the ghosts of the great Californians. Democrats of the past—W. W. Foote, William D. English, Stephen M. White, James G. Maguire, James D. Phelan and others who have gone before."

"W. L." said a cynic in comment. "Phelan and Maguire are dead but don't know it."

Put It on the Democratic Brethren

Up in Sacramento the only men to oppose the Panama-Pacific Exposition—the only Californians to fight for New Orleans against San Francisco—were the Democrats. These were Senator Campbell of San Luis Obispo, Senator Caminetti of Amador and Assemblyman Oscar Gibbons of San Luis. They fought in the open, however, which is more than can be said for old Grove Johnson, who, in the Assembly, was a fearful thorn in the side of the San Francisco boosters.

However, in the Senate, after the two Democratic Senators had done their best to block the exposition measures, along came a certified copy of the resolution adopted by the Democratic State Convention warmly endorsing both constitutional amendments. As the clerk read the resolution Senator Leroy Wright of San Diego turned and cynically said:

"I move to refer that resolution to Senators Caminetti and Campbell as a special committee."

When Campbell opposed the bonds for the big fair he said, in a broad-minded way:

"The only benefit San Luis will get out of that exposition is to have a lot of people riding through the town at night on two streaks of rust."

And yet in the district misrepresented by this noble exemplar of statecraft are Carmel-by-the-Sea, the Hotel Del Monte and Paso Robles Hot Springs—three resorts that would benefit by the exposition more than any other, and where the visitors would spend many times in actual money the entire amount the Campbell district of San Luis Obispo, San Benito and Monterey would have to pay in taxes on those resorts.

Then, too, there is Signor Antonio Caminetti in opposition. Now this is the same Caminetti who was the chief promoter of the new paper, the San Francisco Sun. How "Cam" expects to make the paper succeed in San Francisco by pulling for New Orleans it would bother even a Democrat to explain. No wonder there are rumors that the Sun is already overcast. But, as I said last week, the Democrats have a fatal faculty of doing the wrong thing at the right time. They can't get over the habit.

Stop This Imprisonment for Debt

It is becoming California's shame that we imprison people for debt and use our police and sheriffs and constables as collection agencies. When the next Legislature gets down to the reform of the criminal procedure that is one of the things to be tackled first.

"But we long ago did away with imprisonment for debt," I hear the patriotic enthusiast exclaim.

But we didn't. If you owe any hotel man or boarding house keeper a debt for your board or lodging and dispute his bill he can throw you into prison and hold you until you pay up. What is that but imprisonment for debt? Why shouldn't the grocer and the butcher have the same right? What about special legislation?

The other night a widow of means and a frisky disposition started out with a male companion to "see the town." She shook her man and got to going it alone. Hiring a taxicab she went on and on and on. At the end of her ride she had a dispute with the chauffeur as to the charge against her. In short, she questioned his bill.

That chauffeur just drove the lady around to the city prison and had her locked up until she should pay. If that isn't imprisonment for debt, what is it? Isn't that using the police as a private collection agency?

The Reform Wave in Sacramento

Up in good old Sacramento town, that, by the way, is going ahead by leaps and bounds, those who are in politics for revenue only are throwing their glad hats in the air and joying that the reform wave hit the city and hit it hard. This reform wave was represented by William Kent, the Marin county millionaire, who defeated Duncan McKinlay for the Republican nomination for Congress.

Now Kent is the purest of the pure; friend of Pincher and Roosevelt; leader in the Lincoln-Roosevelt League. Of course he wouldn't spend money in a practical way in politics. But here is what happened in the capitol city:

One "Skewbald," a bright negro who used to serve drinks and chicken Spanish for Billy Hanlon, started a nice social club for colored gentlemen. It became quite a resort, with chancy little games going on, and the disciples of Jack Johnson from the reconcentrado camp making it headquarters. "Skewbald" got to be quite a political boss.

Well, sah, do you know that all those cullud gemmen from "Skewbald's" club just happened to vote for Kent, the purist, against McKinlay, the practical politician, and it also happened—just happened—that next day each of the colored brethren had a jingle in his jeans. Please don't start an investigation, good Mr. McKinlay!

And the Band Played On

When the Democratic leaders gathered at the Palace preparatory to invading Stockton they, of course, swapped many stories about other conventions and the brighter Democratic days. This one on J. Marion Brooks was told by John T. Gaffey of San Pedro:

Brooks, as Senator, had been read out of the party

by the famous Stockton convention of 1884. But he went back to his old district and got elected to the Assembly. Next he moved to Los Angeles and started after the Democratic nomination. He had little backing, but went to the convention at Santa Monica with a stern determination to win.

He hired the finest band in Los Angeles. They had brilliant uniforms, and the drum major was a giant whose snake was at least three feet tall. This band marched in and sat in silence in the front of the hall. When it came time for nominations for District Attorney and Brooks was placed in nomination the band suddenly struck up "Hail to the Chief!" Then, when the candidate walked down the aisle to make his bow and address, the band played loudly "See, the Conquering Hero Comes!"

Brooks got about fifteen votes. At once up rose that drum major, led the brilliant band out the center aisle playing at the top of their instruments: "Down Went McGinty to the Bottom of the Sea!"

Curtin's Fight

State Senator John Curtin of the Twelfth Senatorial District, or "Constitutional John," as his friends call him, is to have the fight of his life for re-election this fall. Curtin has been in the Legislature for a good many years. This time his Republican opponent in the person of L. L. Dennett is a particularly strong man, a fine lawyer, an authority on irrigation law and a good speaker. He is well equipped to make a bang-up campaign and is said to have the members of his own party solidly behind him. Both men have many friends in San Francisco and they are much interested in the outcome of this senatorial scrap. The district is composed of two mountain and three valley counties. In the latter Dennett is very popular. This district is in the bailiwick of Congressman J. C. Needham. As he and Dennett are great friends, that fact is also considered an element of strength for Dennett. Curtin has always been strong in the mountain counties. Heretofore he has made inroads in the valley counties because his opponent had elements of weakness which Dennett is by no means encumbered with. So, all in all, their San Francisco friends are saying it will be a merry fight between the two men.

Coin for Carpenters

The trite saying about it being an ill wind which does not blow somebody some good is particularly appropriate as concerns the carpenters who repair the Chinese gambling resorts after the police have invaded them with hatchets and axes. Several carpenters have been doing this repair work for Chinese gamblers steadily for the past fifteen or sixteen years, except or about two years following the fire. When men like Jesse Cook and Matheson were sergeants of police in Chinatown they wrecked a good many gambling places once, twice and even four or five times in what they considered the performance of their duty. Regularly after these minions of the law retired from the scene, the men of saws and hammers appeared at the behest of the Chinamen to put their places in order once again with thick plank doors, new tables and whatnot. One carpenter, who has long performed much of this repair work, says that it is no exaggeration to state that in sixteen years the Chinese gamblers have paid $300,000 to rehabilitate their halls of chance from the cyclone-like ravages of the police. He himself has repaired it about twenty times, at a cost of something like $6000. You can understand, therefore, why this man and the other few interested carpenters have no objections to the sledge-hammer activities of the police.

The Cave Man

Bohemian Club members are anticipating several hours of fun next Saturday night, when a parody on the midsummer jinks play of "The Cave Man" is to be presented in the rooms of the club. It is in accordance with an interesting custom of the institution to always have a take-off on the midsummer jinks performance several weeks after that event. The parody this year is entitled "The Cave Man's Return, or the Afterglow." Its preparation is in good hands, for the words are by Rufus Steele and the music by Walter Sabin. They have given considerable time and thought to the subject, and those who know what they have accomplished assert they have got together plenty of good things for a riot of merriment. It will be remembered that David Bispham, the operatic tenor, took the leading part at the midsummer jinks. In the parody "Lob" Newell is to essay the leading role in his own inimitable way.

Joke of the Old Days

Colonel D. C. Collier of San Diego has been in town for a few days advising with Messrs. King, Brown, Hale and their conferees of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition about a campaign in the east for San Francisco as the site for the proposed exposition as against New Orleans. At one of their conferences the quick-witted San Diegan heard several pronouncements of the name of the Crescent

City with the accent on the first syllable of its second word and some with the accent on that word's last syllable. To those using the latter pronunciation Collier laughingly remarked that he hoped they were not in the condition Charley Reed, the famous minstrel man, used to ascribe to those who pronounced New Orleans in that manner.

"How's that?" came a bombardment of questions from this and that side.

"Well," remarked the genial Collier, "Reed one night as end man told the interlocutor that he could always tell whether a man had money or was broke by the way he pronounced New Orleans. Of course, Mr. Interlocutor wanted to know all about it. Reed went on to reply:

"When a man's got money he always says New Orleans. When he is down on his luck he invariably says New Orleans. Now, the last time I was in New Orleans, Mr. Interlocutor!"

Hushing a Scandal

Here is the tale of how Manager Warner of the Hotel Del Monte and General Manager A. D. Shepard of the Pacific Improvement Company, which owns the big caravansary, inadvertently gave a sensational story to the morning papers which they desired to suppress. Reference is made to the story the papers had a few days ago about the assault made on Clare Payne by Maurice Shortridge in the bar of the hotel because of the alleged offensive conduct of the former toward Shortridge's sister, Mrs. Vesta Shortridge Brugniere. When Warner was informed of the fight between the two society chaps he immediately wired Shepard in this city that a scandal had taken place, and urged him to try and keep it out of the papers. He did not inform Shepard about the nature of the scandal. Thinking the affair was something dreadful and not "much ado about nothing" on Warner's part, as subsequent events revealed, Shepard made post-haste to the several editorial sanctuaries. There he found there was less known than even he knew about the supposed dreadful affair. In fact, the editors had not heard of any occurrence out of the ordinary among the society folk gathered at Del Monte. But on Shepard's departure they all got very busy. So that is how the papers the next morning were enabled to get for their readers the barroom pugilistic encounter of two apparently foolish young men.

Crocker's at Outs

Henry J. Crocker's name was not among those in the list of guests invited to the ball marking the social debut of Miss Ethel Crocker, the daughter of William H. Crocker, the millionaire banker, last week, although he is a first cousin of the latter. The explanation is not far to find. It has to do with a bitter business quarrel between these two prominent men, which took place several years before the fire, and in which Prince Poniatowski was mixed up. In fact, the prince, who is a brother-in-law of William H. Crocker, is blamed by those who say they know for having needlessly added to the bitterness of the dispute. Poniatowski was induced by T. S. Ballock and S. M. Freshman to join them in building the Sierra Railway, which runs from Oakdale in the San Joaquin valley up into the mining country around Sonora. Henry J. Crocker flayed $500,000 of first mortgage bonds for this property and also took an interest in it. He claimed to have done so at the request of Poniatowski. The dispute between the former and William H. Crocker, who was also interested in the road, arose over the compensation Henry J. Crocker demanded for successfully handling the bond issue. The latter had to go to court to enforce his claim, an act which caused the two cousins to indulge in some sharp words. Before the suit came to trial there was a compromise, Henry J. getting something like $300,000 in settlement of all his claims, including his interests in the road. The two cousins have not spoken since.

Californians Make Good

Many Californians have gone East and "made good" in this and that line of activity. Mention at this time can be made of two of these people. W. B. Storey, now living in Chicago, as chief engineer of the Santa Fe Railway system, and who was elected last week grand president of the Zeta Psi college fraternity at its national convention in this city, received his education at the University of California. Desiring to be a civil engineer he began at the bottom of the ladder under Chief Engineer William Flood of the Southern Pacific. Storey made rapid advancement under that famous railroad builder and finally became his chief assistant. When the San Francisco merchants got ready to build the San Joaquin Valley Railroad their choice of an engineer fell upon Storey. He did that work so well that when the Santa Fe bought the property President E. P. Ripley sent him to Topeka to do a lot of difficult and costly reconstruction work. Here, again, he showed himself to be the right man in the right place. Later on Ripley promoted him to his present position.

The other man is young Alexander H. Rutherford, a San Franciscan, who is the son of the late Mrs.

THE KNAVE

George Crocker by her first husband and one of whose sisters is married to a son of General Phil Kearny, after who Kearny street in this city is named. Rutherford has the confidence of some of the monied powers in New York and is credited with making $30,000 a year as a stock broker. He visited here a few days ago his uncle, Lewis E. Hanchett. It is Rutherford and his sisters who are contesting the will of George Crocker. They want restored to them the costly Crocker mansion in New York, or its equivalent in money, because they claim it was the property of their mother.

Ready for Court Battle

Mrs. John T. Darling is to be given a fight by James W. Daniell, stepfather of Ella Parker Hastings, and the latter's attorney, Archie Treat. This is the reason they have had her subpoenaed as a witness to appear before Superior Judge Graham on October 18th, when the hearing of the petition of Miss Hastings to be restored to competency comes up again for consideration. Mrs. Darling is the eldest of the Hastings heirs and the aunt of Miss Hastings, who lives with her stepfather, Daniell, in England. Mrs. Darling does not want her niece restored to competency and given full charge of her property unless the court appoints some one as trustee, other than Daniell, to assist her in managing it. She fears Daniell may squander the property because of his influence over his stepdaughter. She has also indulged in some punning by remarking that before she gets through with Treat he will have a "treat not to his liking." Daniell and Treat, while realizing that Mrs. Darling loves any old kind of a squabble, plan, if the occasion demands, to ask her a lot of leading questions. They are determined that she shall have nothing to do with the niece's property. Mrs. Darling has a sister, Ella Hastings, who is a legal incompetent. As her guardian Mrs. Darling has for years had charge of this sister's monthly income of $1200. It is said Daniell and Treat may ask her a lot of questions about the handling of this income. On the other hand, it is hinted Mrs. Darling in her fight against Daniell having anything to do with her niece's fortune may seek to prove that he lives off of his stepdaughter's goodly income and makes no pretense of supporting himself, save for the occasional detective cases in society circles he takes for Scotland Yard. Among the Hastings estate people it has long been asserted that Daniell, who is a guest at the Palace, is at the beck and call of Scotland Yard as one of its best sleuths in certain kinds of cases in society.

Club Activities

Club activities by no means destroy the eternal feminine in woman, as was shown in the case of Mrs. S. recently, and who, no doubt, is now reflecting on the truth of the old adage about speech being silver and silence golden. Mrs. S., which is not the correct initial, is one of San Francisco's prominent club women, whose freedom of speech is a frequent source of consternation, as well as amusement, to her friends. Not long ago she attended an afternoon reception at the home of a fellow club woman, where her personal acquaintance with most of the guests and her originality and ready flow of small talk gave her a prominence she evidently enjoyed. But alas, popularity, like fortune, is a fickle jade. A new note was introduced into the social atmosphere by the late arrival of another guest, a stranger to Mrs. S. and evidently a young bride, whose charming personality and striking blonde beauty caused the guests to circle about her like bees about a honey pot. Mrs. S., thus temporarily eclipsed, subsided among the cushions of a divan and consoled herself with tea and cake, while gay laughter and fragments of conversation in which "John and I" "beginning housekeeping" "such fun to cook" figured largely, reached her ears. Blushing and smiling, the gay little bride received the avalanche of congratulations and attentions with evident enjoyment, and, after a brief fifteen minutes, having another social engagement for the afternoon, was whisked away as breezily as she had come. After her departure there was a lull, broken at last by Mrs. S.

"Well," she drawled exasperatedly, "don't you simply hate brides?"

There was a gasp of astonishment, then a ripple of amusement among the guests, while one inquired "Why?"

There was combat in Mrs. S.'s eye, while her face and voice still retained their expression of exasperated patience as she replied:

"Oh, they're so airy and selfish. You hear nothing from them but 'My husband,' 'my home,' 'my this' and 'my that.'"

"I had a sister once I was very fond of until she got married," she continued, taking her audience into her confidence with a comprehensive glance, "and then she was like the rest—simply hateful."

At this juncture the hostess tactfully proposed some music. It was not until a week later that Mrs. S. discovered that the little bride, who had unwittingly been the cause of her impromptu philippic, was a cousin of the hostess and was related in different ways to at least three or four of her fellow guests.

The Cancer Cure

Much is being printed in the papers about Dr. P. K. Gilman's cancer cure and the tentative opinion of prominent medical men that the cure may prove to be one of the greatest discoveries in the history of medical science. Something about the personality of the man and his code of ethics will, therefore, be not amiss. While Dr. Gilman refuses to speak of the matter, it can be stated as a fact that when in his experimental work in the general hospital at Manila he first discovered his cancer serum, the question that first presented itself to his mind was, "Will the injection of this serum have any dangerous effect on a person?" Gilman took the honorable stand that he did not want to do to anybody else what he would not do to himself. So he first tried it on himself, showing by his act his high sense of honor, as well as his confidence in the virtue of his discovery. He experienced in his healthy body no bad effects. The conclusion was, therefore, evident that the serum, if it did not cure, would not be a source of danger to a cancerous person. Should this serum finally prove to be an absolute cure for cancer, this self-injection act on Gilman's part will become historic like self-experimenting acts of many prominent scientists in the past. Gilman is a tall, athletic man of about thirty-five years, unassuming, frank, a good listener and always interesting when he talks. Gilman does not say the serum is an absolute cure. He hopes time will show it is. All he will say for the present is that it is acting favorably in all cases where he has tried it. The surgeon's knife can stay the ravages of cancer for three or five years. So it may take several years to prove whether this serum merely stays the progress of the disease or effectually cures it. This, at least, is the opinion of a very eminent San Francisco medical man who refuses to be quoted.

Fault-Finding Guest

"Does that guest sitting over there (pointing) cause you any annoyance by constant fault-finding?" asked a commercial traveler who frequently registers at the St. Francis of Manager James Woods last night while the two were chatting in the hotel's Peacock alley.

When told that the guest in question had not been scattering any complaints about, the drummer remained silent a moment. Then, as if in answer to a questioning look of Woods', went on to say:

"That fellow, Woods, is known among traveling men as one of the darndest kickers on the road. But I guess the experience he had with a bonfire in a small town up north a few days ago has jarred his temper down to a level for awhile. I happened to be at the same hotel the day in question. Nothing pleased the fellow. Everything was bad in his opinion—ink, writing paper, food and a lot else. Retiring about 10 o'clock that night, he came running downstairs an hour later in his pajamas like mad, his clothes on one arm and his shoes in his hand.

"This is a h—l of a place," he shouted at the proprietor, who sat talking with me. "There are two big rats on the foot of my bed giving a Johnson-Jeffries act to beat the band."

"What more do you expect for a dollar room, anyhow?" was the squelching reply of the hotel man.

When His Wife Was Angry

A former United States Senator from a certain Pacific Coast State, who was in the city on business the other day, dropped a story of how he could always tell when his wife was angry at him and did not want him in the house. While he made no bones of telling the domestic secret to half a dozen men friends at the Palace, his name shall not be given. Suffice it to say that he is a prominent professional man who carries in an attractive manner dignity and reserve when not given to glancing in the wine cup, which is infrequent.

"Once and awhile I've been known to like convivial companions," said this former member of what is sometimes called the highest legislative body in the world, and on other occasions America's millionaires' club. "On those regrettable occasions I have a scheme all my own of finding out the mental attitude of my better half. I drive up to my domicile in an auto. Going to the door, I open it, ring the bell and then throw in my hat. If it is thrown back to me I know it is best to go back downtown again. So I go without parleying. No, I have never known my hat not to have been thrown back while the convivial fit was on me. Therefore, in order to save the wear and tear of my headgear, together with some other reasons, I find it best to tread the quiet paths of the buttermilk route for months at a time."

Army Rations

General Tasker H. Bliss of the Department of California, U. S. A., who is to command the regulars and militia at the forthcoming maneuvers at Camp Atascadero, is to give the new army emergency ration a thorough trial with the 6000 men to be assembled there. He says this ration consists of three cakes made of material composed of milk, egg, chocolate and a little sugar. It is palatable and nutritious, and it has keeping qualities which make possible the maintenance of a large reserve stock. The ration is a commercial production which can be obtained in large quantities in time of trouble. Each ration possesses sufficient nutriment to sustain a soldier for twenty-four hours. It may be eaten dry, or reduced to a sort of gruel or thick soup, or mixed with more water and used as a beverage. It is also palatable when moistened and mixed with hard bread.

General Bliss, by the way, was the man who during war times squelched the butchers at Santiago, Cuba, when he found they were forcing the public to pay ninety cents a pound for meat. Summoning them before him he forced them to admit that the meat only cost them fifteen cents a pound. He then ordered them to sell for a price not higher than twenty-five cents, and saw to it that his order was strictly obeyed, an act which endeared him very much to the people there.

Mrs. Oelrichs Popular

Here is some society gossip at first hand from Newport for those who like such things:

A friend, an eye witness of some social affairs at Newport and a participant in one or two of them, has returned home and tells some gossip of that American society Mecca. My informant is always on the Greenway list, but seldom mingles in society because his tastes run differently and he has no women folk to pull him frequently into the social stream in spite of himself. He was one of the guests at the dinner and entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffer Tailor at their beautiful Newport home on Friday, August 26th last. There he met Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, one of the many guests, with whom he is quite friendly. According to his story, Mrs. Oelrichs was one of the guests at the host's table that evening, there being many small tables set for the guests at the dinner. He says that if anything this former San Francisco girl is more popular than ever in the Newport and New York set.

On the night in question her costume and jewels were the cynosure of many admiring eyes. With the navy set she has made a distinct hit, he goes on to say, because of her elaborate dinner for the officers of the North Atlantic squadron and the entertainment she arranged for the members of the battleships' crews. He saw that unique Newport society product, Harry Lehr, in his latest creation, and the sight still causes him to marvel. The latest with Lehr, he says, is the wearing of gold ankle bracelet set with diamonds. It is conspicuously displayed in the ample space between his low oxfords and his high turned-up white flannel trousers. From what he saw he says Newport evidently takes Lehr and his whims and fads in large doses, but does not think it worth while to seek out the explanation.

KNOWLAND TO TALK TO CLUB

B'nai B'rith Members Look Forward to Address—Plan High Jinks.

One of the important events in the calendar of the local order B'nai B'rith will be the address to be delivered by Congressman Joseph R. Knowland in the parlors on San Pablo avenue, September 20. The lecture will be attended by the members of the lodge, who are looking forward to the evening with interest. The subject of the address has not as yet been announced. According to the program for the winter season, the following functions will be held under the auspices of the Oakland Lodge, B'nai B'rith September 13, high links with informal banquet in the hall, September 21, theater party at Ye Liberty Theater; October 18, women's night, October 20, first invitational grand ball to be given in the hall to the members of the lodge, December 21, banquet and ball to be given at Piedmont clubhouse. The members of Oakland Lodge contemplate the erection of a new lodge building. No specific plans in this regard have been formulated as yet, but it is believed that committees will be appointed preparatory to the project, which has the commendation of the local lodge as well as the grand officers.

Exhibit Planned of Paintings of Shurlaw

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Arrangements have been completed here for the holding of a series of memorial exhibitions of the work of the late Arthur Shurlaw, a prominent American artist, who died last year in Spain. The first of the series will be held in New York. Then the exhibition will go to the Albright gallery in Buffalo, the Art Institute in Chicago, the St. Louis Museum of Fine Arts, the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburgh and the National Gallery in Washington. The exhibitions are to be given under the direction of Mrs. Shurlaw.

HARD POLITICAL BATTLE IN MAINE

Both Parties Claiming to Have Elected Governor and Congressmen.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 10.—Not for a generation has such a fierce political battle been fought in Maine as that which practically came to a finish tonight. It has been a great many years since there has been so much doubt as to what the result will be until the votes are counted Monday night. The Republicans claim that they will elect Governor Fernald by a safe, though perhaps reduced, majority, and will return an unbroken Republican delegation to Congress. The Democrats are insisting on the election of Colonel Fre. W. Plafien as Governor and will capture the first and second Congressional districts.

The issues which are having this effect are mixed. They are partly state issues and partly national. In Maine probably more than anywhere else, state issues are a campaign in which representative of Congress are elected, assume an inordinate importance. This is because Maine has long been a prohibition state, and yet the prohibition question is as burning as ever.

Capt. Baldwin Makes Seven-Mile Flight

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—Captain Thomas S. Baldwin made a flight of seven miles down the Mississippi river here this afternoon. On the trip he crossed three bridges. After landing Baldwin expects to make a return flight to the aviation field in North St. Louis.

The Slim Woman Is Winning.

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thin one" is the more stylish," say the dressmakers. This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting exercises. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmola. Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly. These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, and they are, also, the most economical proposition a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of 12 or 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmola Company, 235 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

HALF-MAST FLAG FOR LATE CHILEAN

Lowered American Standard Shows Growing Kinship With Latin Nation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—An earnest of the growing kinship among the people of the American hemisphere is the presidential order that the American flag shall be kept at half-mast for a few days over the public buildings here as a mark of respect to the memory of Fernandez Albano, late acting President of Chile, who died in Santiago on the 6th of this month. A similar order was issued when President Menzies of Chile died in Europe August 17, so that the flags have been kept almost constantly at half-mast since that date.

This is almost without precedent. Heretofore the national standard has been placed at half-mast only on the death of some distinguished American. It was not even lowered in the case of King Edward.

LIKENS COLUMBUS TO EXPLORER COOK

Henry Vignaud Declares Discoverer Was "Hardly Ever Truthful."

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Henry Vignaud's great work on Columbus is announced at last. He is reading the proof and it will appear on the book stalls shortly. The title is "A Critical History of the Great Discoverer of Columbus," and this indicates its scope. It is in two volumes of 104 pages each.

It differs essentially from Irving's and Tansley's lives of Columbus. "I use Columbus' documents also, but I verify them by documents from another source. The result is frequently a different story. When the explorer's statements were at stake I regret to say, he did not hesitate to lie. He was hardly ever truthful about himself."

"His reputation was so great that no one dared question his mere word. Like many other great men, Columbus was human. When the Pope, who was fond of making saints, was at his wit's end when he came to putting Columbus on the calendar."

Vignaud is now 80 years old. This book on Columbus was begun forty years ago, when he first entered on his services as secretary to the American embassy in Paris and in his life's work.

REFUSES TO PAY $2000 FOR CABIN ON LINER

American Declares It Will Be Cheaper to Stay Abroad a Month.

FALL PROMISES TO BE ONE OF GAIETY

Duke of Connaught Repeats His Visit to Charming Hostess.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—One American this week was told he could have the only cabin on a New York going steamship for $2000. He declined, deciding that it was cheaper to spend another month in England. His example has been followed by numerous other delayed American voyagers. This illustrates the necessity of trans-Atlantic voyagers engaging their return accommodations in advance.

Mrs. Whitehead Reid decided to sail on the Adriatic, but the White Star Line officials regretfully informed her that there were no accommodations. By good fortune she managed to secure a cabin on the Mauretania, where she will have among her fellow passengers Judge and Mrs. Gary and Mrs. O. H. Belmont. George Gould and family left London on Wednesday and the next day embarked on the Kron Princess Cecilia.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

For a season which started out so dimly that the steamship folk and hotel keepers alike prophesied disaster this has turned out most successful in point of expenditure and numbers.

Among prominent Anglo-Americans who think London in September is a good place to be out of are the Duchess of Devonshire, who is going, and the Scottish Viscountess, Mrs. Drexel, who is away in the country; Mrs. Smith, who is at Brighton Castle, which she has leased from Lady Algernon-George-Lennox and where she will stay at least two months. Now that the mists, as the London press delights to call them, have returned homeward London is in for a quiet time until the King returns from Scotland.

VANDERBILT ON TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, after making an extensive cruise, rested for a few days at the Ritz and then left on Wednesday for another voyage on their yacht, the North Star.

Mr. Whitney and party have returned to Scotland.

Remarkable secrecy seems to mark the present whereabouts of Frank Gould and his wife, formerly Miss Edith Kelly. Since they left the Carlton last week none of their friends have received any indications, although it is generally supposed that Mr. Gould is in Scotland. Close-mouthed messengers collect his letters at the Carlton Hotel and forward them. One of Mr. Gould's friends ascribes "too much publicity" as a reason for the secrecy.

REPEATS VISIT.

The Duke of Connaught so enjoyed his last visit to Glasgow, Ireland, that he has gone there again. Mrs. Jack Leslie, the American wife of Col. Leslie and her sister, Mrs. George Cornwallis West, a beautiful brunette, will do the duty of hostess during the shooting season. The Duke for some years has been a great friend of the Leslies, who accompanied the Duke and Duchess on one of their expeditions to India some time ago.

Directly King George returns from Scotland London will see a round of activity. Four thousand and one functions, which were abandoned at the time of King Edward's death, are to be worked off in good earnest. Contracts for dinners, meetings, concerts and innumerable forms of other entertainments were entered into and postponed indefinitely. Now that all-quiescence permits almost every one of these promised items has become a certainty.

ANNUAL BANQUETS.

The annual banquets of the Lancashire, Cornishmen, Yorkshiremen and Devonians and numerous learned bodies will be crowded into the fall end of the autumn season. There will be a lengthy series of political dinners, diplomatic receptions and other social functions. It will prevent the threatened bankruptcy in a number of instances of business which has been kept in anticipation of the coming rush. The King himself will not take any part in this round of festivities but until he returns London society is unlikely to resemble.

Meanwhile Mrs. Kyrle is making great preparations for the coronations. He intends to hold what he calls a coronation reception at the White City, on a scale unequalled even by himself. This will be followed in 1912 by the Latin exhibition when the best features of the Franco-British show are likely to be imitated.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO LOOK OVER SITES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Acting Secretary Charles D. Hill has detailed agents of the Geological Survey to visit cities for which new government buildings were provided at the last session of Congress and inspect the sites which have been offered in response to advertisements.

William D. Windom will visit Pennsylvania, New York and the New England states, and Colonel J. P. Low will visit the Central States.

Mr. Hill will go to St. Louis within the next month and select a site for a new sub-treasury.

These suits are the plain man-tailored models steadily growing in favor. Developed from broadcloths, serges, worsteds, mannish suitings, diagonals and other weaves. Shown in a gratifying range of colors with a plentiful number in the staple black, navy, grays and other medium and dark tones. The coats are cut at a becoming shortness and have linings of fine quality silk or satin. The skirts are cut on straight lines, with an inclination toward narrowness. Very little ornamentation is attempted, as the two illustrations indicate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Much significance is being attached to the coming biennial convention of the National League, which will be held at Carnegie Hall, New York City, September 30 and October 1.

The league recognizes neither "insurgent" or "stand-patter," neither "progressive" or "reactionary," but stands for the principles of the Republican party without any distinction whatsoever as between the wings above mentioned; and with President Taft making the keynote speech, and the only speech, by the way, of a political character which he will make during this campaign, and the presence at the convention of leaders from all sections of the country, an opportunity to harmonize conflicting interests, it is believed, will be presented that should not be overlooked.

President John Hays Hammond of the League, who has spoken at a number of league rallies recently, believes that the forthcoming convention will be the largest in the history of the organization. Letters from State presidents and secretaries that have been received at headquarters voicing a common sentiment that the League is in a position to bring the warring factions of the party together in the end that the policies enunciated by the Republican convention of 1908 through its platform and accented by the utterances of President Taft in his messages and public addresses be fulfilled.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The week's stock market made no positive response to news developments. The only effect was of depression. The election results in Vermont and the belief that a division was growing between the President and his predecessor, were factors in making politics an unsettling influence.

The government crop report and the week's weather conditions promised improvement in the crops, but the extreme hazard from frost damage to cotton and corn owing to the lateness of the start of these crops left the final yield still uncertain.

The enormous output of copper for August disappointed hopes of effective curtailment and sentiment in the iron and steel trades lacked confidence.

Interior demands for a coalition to move the crops continues, but moderated from the rate of the previous week.

ADMIRAL EVANS TO LIVE IN CALIFORNIA

SELMA, Cal., Sept. 10.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, retired, and a party of Eastern capitalists, who have been visiting the oil fields in Central California, left Coalinga today for San Francisco. It is rumored that Admiral Evans will lead a coalition to move the crops continues, but moderated from the rate of the previous week.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 10.—Furs valued at more than $60,000 were sold by the Seattle fur sale agency at public auction to eighteen buyers from all parts of the United States and Western Canada at the sale concluded yesterday. Eighty-two prices were obtained for the furs. The visiting buyers present at the sale were James Rosenberger, Victoria, Becker Brothers, Chicago; E. J. Rogers, New York; Marshall Bier, St. Louis; McMillan Fur and Wool company, Minneapolis; Joseph Uhlmann, St. Paul, Northwest Hide and Fur company, Edmonton; Boscovitz & Sons, Victoria, Hudson Bay Fur company, Victoria, Fred Foster, Victoria, Silverfield Fur company, Portland; J. P. Plageman, Portland.

One lot of 377 mink sold at $25.83. One seat otter was sold at $300. Eighteen Russian sables sold at $550. The following average prices prevailed:

2 Martens, $20; white fox, $13; red fox, $8; timber wolf, $9; good black bear, $11; land otter, $14; ermine, 75 cents; grizzly bear, $30; lynx, $30; cross fox, $12; American marten, $12; Alaska, $12; British Columbia beaver, $5.50.

RUSSIA PLANS TO EXPEL ALL JEWS

KIEV, Russia, Sept. 10.—A canvass of the city to round up and finally send away to the restricted district set apart for them, all of those Jews who still remain in the city and are unable to establish a legal right of residence, will be made soon.

From August 28 to September 8, 209 persons were summarily expelled, or given notice to depart within a stated period. In the same time 150 persons were expelled from the suburbs of Solomenka and Demotse.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—On behalf of business associates, James Lee, a curb broker, has undertaken to test the constitutionality of the new law which went into effect in New York State on September 7, to regulate all private banks or all businesses which in any way accept money for deposit. An order to show cause why the attorney-general, district attorney, police commissioner and the State comptroller should be enjoined from enforcing the provisions of the law is before the State supreme court.

Counsel for Lee argued that the law imposes unequal restraints, giving to the great business houses a freedom denied the smaller banker, thus, to all intents and purposes, depriving him of his business and his property without due process of law.

RECALLS COMMISSION.

Louis Marshall, who appears for State attorney-general in his argument, recalls how a commission appointed in 1908 by Governor Hugh A. F. found serious abuses in the small private banks throughout this city chiefly patronized by poor immigrants. During the panic of 1907 those lost $2,000,000.

"It was easier to run a bank than a saloon," says the lawyer. "For the private banker was subject to no regulation, whereas the saloon had to comply with distinct restrictions."

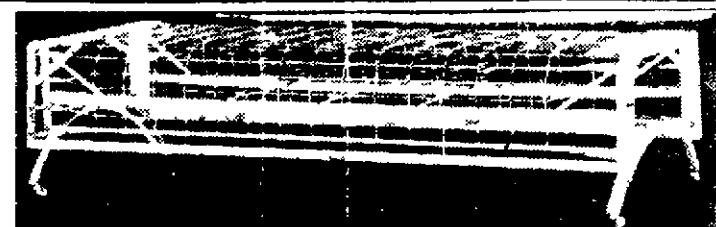

Justice Blum reserved the briefs of counsel and accepted decision.

HOLMES TAKES OFFICE; HEADS MINES BUREAU

JOSEPH A. HOLMES, who took oath as head of the new Bureau of Mines.

New Official Must Work Out Details of Department to Suit President

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 10.—Washington will watch with interest the newly created bureau of mines, which will start with Joseph A. Holmes at its head. Holmes took oath of office today and immediately began laying his plans for conducting the department.

Prior to Holmes' appointment by President Taft to chief of the new bureau he was head of the technological branch of the United States geological survey and in that position was declared by Taft to be one of the most faithful of all government officers in Washington.

Holmes won the President's appointment from a number of competitors who early took the field for the office and made a strenuous fight by means of "pull" and recaptures to win the executive's favor.

Just how the bureau of mines will be conducted, along what lines and the detail of the duties of the men under him will be determined by Holmes before he has done anything else in office.

Restore Whipping Law in Prisons of Texas

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 10.—The fourth special session of the Texas Legislature during the term of Governor Campbell adjourned today. The last official act was the signing by the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker of the House of the law making radical changes in the conduct of the State penitentiary. Whipping in the cases of convicts is what is known as the third or incorrigible case was restored.

Shafroth Is Chosen Convention Delegate

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 10.—The Denver county Democratic convention chose Governor Shafroth today as delegate to the State convention, but instructed him along with the other county delegates to vote for Dr. Benjamin L. Jefferson as his county's candidate for Governor. The Governor was criticized in a speech by Ralph Talbot, the permanent chairman of the convention.

Besides many riding devices such as merry-go-round and other amusements, about 200 children from the Lockwood school will give a concert. The Lockwood school band will also be heard. There will be a baby show and athletics. Lind, say Moore is president of the club and Clinton Moore is manager of the affair.

AT 92 HE WILL TAKE BRIDE 44 YEARS OLD

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Volney D. Ruscoe established a record yesterday in the marriage license department in the county building. Mr. Ruscoe lacks two months of being 92 years old. He applied for a license to marry Miss Helen Conger, 44 years old.

Clerk Salmonson immediately after the departure of the couple doled into the archives and announced that all records had been smashed.

LABOR CONVENTION PLANS BEING MADE

Many Affiliated Unions Will Be Represented at Los Angeles Gathering.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—At an emergency meeting of the State Federation of Labor to be held at Los Angeles, Monday, October 3, Secretary Paul Schuenberg has been called upon to lay out a large number of affiliated unions, including their intention of holding a convention at Los Angeles. He stated that all of the 500 affiliated unions will be represented at the convention, which is the largest ever held in the State. The convention will be the first of its kind where the building trades unions will be represented. The State Federation of Labor has advised its unions to affiliate with the convention and send delegates to the Los Angeles convention. Proposed legislation and jurisdiction of the convention will be discussed. The convention will be held at the Los Angeles Convention Center. The convention will be held at the Los Angeles Convention Center. The convention will be held at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

Golden Gate Auxiliary of Painters has decided to attend in a body the benefit to be given at the Chute's Wednesday evening. A. Little, an injured painter, whose relatives were obligated at their last meeting.

William Jenkins has been elected by voting and Fortable Engineers Union to go to attend the annual convention of the International Union, to be held at Denver this month.

The question of sending an organizer to Los Angeles is to be decided by the unions affiliated with the joint council of laborers by a referendum vote.

Charles Oliva has been elected to represent Santa Clara Workers Union No. 10, 113 to the convention of the State Federation of Labor to meet at Los Angeles next month.

FOUR MILLION TO GUARD HEALTH OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—It is to cost just $4,076,758 to care for the health of this city next year if the estimate submitted by the health department is allowed to stand by the board of estimate and apportionment. The estimate shows an increase over the figures for 1909 of $1,225,900 but the department will try to lower corresponding value for the expenditure.

FORTIFICATIONS FOR PANAMA NOT IN TREATY

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Philippe Bunau-Villa, who was one of the negotiators of the Panama treaty of 1901 in a statement given out in Paris and cabled to this country declares that this instrument created the United States with the right to fortify the canal in the case that such fortifications are advocated by Colonel Roosevelt. Bunau-Villa declares that the fortifications mentioned in the treaty were thought of as a merely temporary character for the purpose of protecting the canal against malefactors. He declares that the United States is not bound to build such fortifications and that the United States is not bound to build such fortifications.

TOWN SPRINKLED WITH HOT CINDERS

Santa Monica Mountains Are Swept Bare of Timber by Flames.

SANTA MONICA, Ca., Sept. 10.—The streets of Santa Monica are sprinkled today with cinders carried by the wind from the fires which are raging in the Santa Monica mountains ten or twelve miles to the west. Hundreds of acres of timber and undergrowth are being swept bare by the flames which are spreading from the heads of Santa Ynez and Temescal canyons.

The spectacular illustration of the lightning strikes kept thousands of persons in Santa Monica and nearby towns awake last night, but today the flames gave place to dense columns of smoke which are slowly overcasting the sky. Santa Ynez canyon leads into the Topanga district the most thickly settled in the mountains with much valuable property and many ranch homes. But it is believed that the flames will not reach that section because of a belt of thick timber which lies to the west of the canyon.

EXCLUSIVE USE OF
OIL PIPE LINE IS GIVEN

Lakeview Company Granted Concession for One Month to Prevent Loss.

GIFFORD PINCHOT TO VISIT BAKERSFIELD

Difficulty Experienced in Storing Large Quantities of Oil
in South.

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 10.—According to the statement of agency officers, the effect of the oil concession of the Lakeview Company is a month's exclusive use of the "Producers" Transportation Company pipe line for storage facilities, and not a month's exclusive use of the pipe line for transportation. The agency officers will be compelled to store their own oil for the next thirty days, but all of them it is said, are in a position to do so and there need be no involuntary reduction of production. As for the amount of inflow of oil, that will not be affected.
The agency members, by the terms of the agreement with the Lakeview Oil Company, will receive from the proceeds of the sale of the Lakeview oil, cash equivalent to the average returns to each company during the last three months. The agency members also will receive their usual credit for stored oil, these credits being charged against Lakeview oil also.

Later on, when the oil is run from the agency members' pump and tanks, the Lakeview will be credited. The effect of the transaction will be the same as though the agency members loaded
the Lakeview their storage for thirty days.

DANGER OF BIG LOSS.

The reason for all this, as the letter of the executive committee explains, is the great danger of losing the Lakeview oil now stored in great carbon reservoirs on the Mesa. It is pointed out that exceptional precautions have been taken to protect these reservoirs from the winter rains, the ditches have been dug to carry away any storm waters that may come down the ravines and canyon from the hills.

As much as 75,000 bbls of the Lakeview oil will be pumped to the sea and sold. More of it will be placed in steel and concrete reservoirs on the mesa, the pipe line and at the coast. The Lakeview oil also will be pumped to the 500,000 barrel carbon reservoir which the agency has rented from the Associated to the Kern River field.

The 100,000 barrel reservoir rented from the Associated is now nearly full of oil from the agency company. In filling the pit, however, the surplus of these companies were well emptied and so they are now ready for the coming month's production. So far as production is concerned the agency is totally in-in the best of condition. The officers say, with the completion of the storage reservoirs order of. It will also be in a better position to carry of its coast competitors in that respect. With a tank storage capacity of some 200,000 barrels, about half filled with oil, the agency could be in a position to carry on an active campaign for the sale of oil or a competitive basis.

TO RECEIVE PINCHOT.

According to advances received by Fred
Hall, first Vice-President of the Kern
County Board of Trade, Gifford Pinchot will arrive in Bakersfield on the Santa Fe at 5:15 o'clock from Monday. Instead of Tuesday, as was first announced. He will remain here through Tuesday and Wednesday, and hopes to gain the desired knowledge from the oil operators on the ground. A committee from the Board of Trade will meet Pinchot at the depot and will show him every course possible, who is to be the conference. He will be in the city on Tuesday and Wednesday morning will be spent in the Kern fields. We predict afternoon Pinchot will be in the city and will be in conference with the local oil operators.

Admiral Byrd, first of return to Bakersfield, is expected up to West side to Goshute. Word reaches here that the admiral will have a number of important oil interests in the San-Joaquin Valley oil fields, and will make his home in California.

Stupendous 32-Page Announcement Placed in Portland Paper Sets Pace
for Coast.

To be able to secure, compose and publish a 32-page announcement from one department store in the land anlive to see the Portland Paper set the pace for the coast. The Portland Paper is a 32-page announcement placed in the Portland Paper. The announcement is swarming the entrance to the great Maler & Frank store of Portland. It is twenty-fourth century nature and to credit is due to the quality and in-
business manager of the Portland Journal.
Mr. L. L. L. L. L. L. L. L. L. L. L. L. L. paperman, required while connected with the Los Angeles Times. Mr. L. L. L. is an Oaklander by birth, the fact that he married one of Oakland's charming ladies, a sister of the well-known James family. For originality and quality of advertisement this in the Journal is a record-breaker.
Portland can boast rightfully of its splendid mercantile life when she able to support a store that can probably use a 32-page ad. The Sunday issue, September 4, of the Portland Journal, in many ways besides the advertisement was a tribute to enterprise and ingenuity.

NATIONAL CURRENCY
ASSOCIATION PLANNED

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Representatives of twelve national banks of Chicago in-at the Clearing House to discuss and to organize a national currency association. While there was some evidence of a desire to delay the matter, a majority of these banks favored the organization within the next two weeks. A committee on organization and constitution was named. It is understood that the next bylaws, recommend nominations for officers of the association and receive intentions from the different banks of their representation as a member of the association.

Millinery Opening Days

THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, OF THIS WEEK

September 15th, 16th and 17th

Our Formal Millinery Opening starts next Thursday Morning and Continues until Closing Time Saturday Night. It will be a magnificent affair, and we earnestly hope you may be able to attend

The display will be the largest and most fascinating ever made in Oakland.

The imported models came from the same artists that designed the headwear of royalty, and they are the most charming hats that Paris has sent over in many seasons.

The hats from New York are exact duplicates of those now being shown by the exclusive shops that cater to the smartest dressers of that metropolis.

The visions of loveliness that have been dreamed out in our own workrooms are simply entrancing—you won't surprise us in the least if you prefer them to the hats from Paris and New York.

You will find our prices as pleasing as our hats—this is one of the few stores that values growing business above exorbitant profits.

Women's Tailored Suits

In the Latest Paris and 5th Avenue Models

$35.00

We want you to come and see these elegant new comers. They are really wonderful suits for the money. In fact, they are so fine that about all that a tailor who makes to order could add to them would be from $15 to $20 to the price. They are fashioned from all wool manish worsted, and have the proper length coats and the latest model skirts. The coats are beautifully lined with guaranteed silk or satin, and are semi-fitting both front and back. With their grace-giving lines—their flawless tailor work and painstaking finish—these suits will delight women who like to be modestly dressed. They are easily worth $35.00—some stores would rate them even higher—and it was only one of those fortunate chances that make up the romance of merchandising that landed them in our racks at..... $35

MINNESOTA PARTY ON LONG TOUR

Minnesota Couple Motoring Across Country; Frisco the Objective Point.

One of the most extensive tours of the season has just been undertaken by Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin of Marshall, Minn., who have just recently started on a trip to Frisco. The course selected will be taken throughout Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin are taking the trip alone without any mechanic and propose to spend the entire time in the car and making use of hotels along the road. Their camping outfit is very complete and includes a tent, which stretched over the car at night, the top of the car acting as ridge poles. In this manner, it serves the double purpose of protecting the car and its occupants. A complete cooking outfit is carried along and sleeping arrangements are very complete, as well as unique. At night a berth is arranged on a light framework, strapping to the running board. At night it is opened and placed on the backs of the seats. This makes a berth considerably more roomy than that of the ordinary Pullman.

Before starting on this trip Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin had driven their Haynes model 19 some 7000 miles this season and the fact that they had absolutely no difficulty with the car at any point gave them the confidence of making this long and arduous trip without a mechanic in the party.

Mrs. Baldwin is an expert motorist and handles the car with as much skill as does her husband. The trip is not intended as a record-breaking one, but is strictly a pleasure trip, and Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin anticipate spending considerable time in visiting in eleven of the principal places along the route.

AWARDS MADE IN HUDSON RUN

Winners Meet With Exciting Experience Along Route; Kill Grizzly Bear.

Awards for the Hudson owners' experience run one of the most unique contests ever held by any motor car concern has just been made by the officials selected by the Hudson factory for that purpose. The first prize of $150 dollars went to A. P. Peterson of Dorchester, Mass., who made his trip through a rural district of New England. The second prize of $100 went to R. W. Hyde of Duluth, Minn., while an additional $25 was awarded to Mrs. Hyde, who drove the car. An interesting experience recorded by the Hyde party was the killing of a big black bear which they encountered during the run.

An old mill, with which is associated exciting ghost lore, lay along the course taken by the Hyde party. It is situated in a deserted lumber camp just above White Face Lodge—another place smacking of adventure and Indian stories. The ladies in the party insisted on a trip through the old mill. Their escorts with rifles over their shoulders, showed them over the spooky place.

The ghost of Hiram Jones was not encountered, but on coming out of the haunted building peculiar noises were heard from the direction of a brush pile which was situated at the opening of a cave. Sporting blood of the whole party was tingling in a flash and all were ready for any kind of a skirmish. The party concealed themselves at some distance from the enclosure and waited for developments.

"Our patience was not tried for long," writes Mr. Hyde, "for Mr. Brin appeared in a short time and shambled to the water's edge for his evening's refreshment. He had our game located and, in the open, so the rest was easy. A shot—a plunge—a show of fight—a moment's struggle, and it was all over. We had some little difficulty in getting him into the hold, for he was a big fellow and we were obliged to remove the wind shield in order to get him placed. However, we managed it all right and proceeded to White Face Lodge and thence home."

Sewing Machine Makers Advocates of Auto Trucks

Theodore Kundtz, one of the biggest sewing machine cabinet manufacturers in the United States, after having used three white trucks at his Cleveland, Ohio, plant for several months, has just placed an order for another one of these machines. In a letter that has been forwarded to C. A. Hawkins, Pacific Coast manager of the White company, Kundtz declared that each one of these trucks dispenses six horses.

Another business concern that has been using the White truck with marked success is the Atlantic Refining Company of Franklin, Pa., manufacturers of Eclipse Lubricating Oils. In general work over this company are displacing three two-horse wagons each.

'GOOD ROADS' IS VITAL QUESTION

Chester N. Weaver Declares Business Men Will Share Profits.

"To no one more than the business men is the question of good roads a vital issue," says Chester N. Weaver, general manager of the Studebaker Bros. Company of California, distributors of the Studebaker, E-M-F and Plender automobiles. The spreading of the doctrine of good roads will mean a large increase in the volume of business and to great leaps in the development of this already rich country, and will make money for every man in mercantile lines. While directly the building of good roads will benefit the farmer and stock raiser, perhaps more than anyone else and will raise the value of every farm reached by good roads, still the business men come in a close second.

Oakland Cars Are Proving Consistent Winners

All over the country Oakland cars continue to compete with marked success in hill climbs and reliability runs. It is this competition as much as anything else that has emphasized the abilities of this car for mountain work. It is safe to say that not a big national hill-climbing test has been held this season but the performance of the Oakland entries has been a feature of the event.

According to advices received by Paul McMullen, the Oakland "sex" has just taken second place in the famous Washington, D. C., contest, being nosed out of first by a scant fifth of a second. The Algonquin hill climb to be held at Chicago on September 15 will have two cars entered by the Oakland Motor Car Company, while a like number of machines will be entered by the same company in the Buffalo three-day reliability run.

OVERLAND GROWTH IS REMARKABLE

Meets Demand of Farmers as General Utility and Pleasure Car.

One of the most remarkable features of this automobile season just closing is the growth of Overland demand on the Pacific coast and the reputation that this machine has established as a general utility car. Throughout the agricultural districts of this section the Overland is finding its greatest trade and it is working a real revolution in the possibilities of the farming classes. By placing itself through its low price within the reach of the man of but moderate means and at the same time offering him real merit and durability the Overland has done much in working out a generally increased efficiency among the agricultural classes.

While the largest coast demand has been experienced in California, the northwest is now coming rapidly to the fore and through the organization effected by J. W. Leavitt, Portland and Seattle branches, offers great promise for the coming season. D. E. Whitman, who manages the Portland branch and Tom White, who handles the Seattle branch, have both established an enviable reputation as all around automobile men in San Francisco, and should do much in promoting Overland sales throughout Oregon and Washington. The Renton Motor Car Company, also through whose agency Southern California is to be handled, has proven itself a most efficient automobile distributing organization and has a good sub-agency system that covers that territory.

Undoubtedly Leavitt's securing the entire Pacific coast territory for Overland distribution is one of the most important deals ever consummated in the local trade and makes the J. W. Leavitt Company a concern of tremendous proportions and possibilities.

NEW HOME IS COMPLETED

Los Angeles Branch of Firestone Tires Now Housed in Fine Quarters.

Among the recent buildings erected in the Los Angeles automobile district is the handsome new home just completed for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company at 1239 South Olive street. The building has been constructed especially for the needs of the Firestone company. Two floors and basement are entirely occupied with stocks of pneumatic automobile tires, inner tubes commercial motor vehicles and carriage tires. A large cement alley way approaches the building from the rear so that cars can be driven in for equipping with tires. The manager, J. F. Lemmon, reports a fast increasing demand for Firestone quick-detachable and demountable rims, and has, in consequence, arranged to carry a good stock and make a specialty of these rims. Particular attention will also be given to Non-Skid tires, which have the company's name moulded in raised lettering on the tread. Speaking of the building, Mr. Lemmon says: "With the increased use of automobiles, the Firestone branch in Los Angeles has enjoyed a tremendous growth of business that has made our former location inadequate. Our new quarters, however, are both spacious and well equipped, giving us every facility for handling the big trade that is ours."

Gunboats Are Visited by Holiday Throng

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—In the absence of larger naval vessels, the ten destroyers and torpedo boats and the gunboat fleet are objects of interest to many Admission Day visitors from interior points, and today a large number of excursions went out to the flotilla and the erection to inspect the fighting vessels. The boats are to be open to the public again tomorrow, and the launch men expect to do a good business carrying the crowds from Howard, Folson, Mission and the other landings.

Government Waging War on Potato Scab

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—A rigid quarantine is being drawn by the government against a disease of the potato which has made its appearance and which, it is feared, will be communicated to the New England states and New York.

It is known as the "black scab" or wart disease that has destroyed hundreds of acres of tubers in England, France and Germany and other parts of Europe.

Peru Carries Cargo to Southern Ports

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Ten cabin and fifteen steerage passengers sailed today for the southern coast and New York in the Pacific Mail steamer Peru, Captain George McKinnon. The cargo amounted to 3000 tons, the principal items being 6000 cases of raisins, 3000 bags of beans and 14,000 cases of canned fruits and vegetables, all for New York, and 40,000 feet of lumber, 50 tons of cement and 500 tons of flour and general merchandise for southern ports.

OLD 'STAR' LANDS IN PRISON CELL

Michael McCann Arrested for Begging; Once Was Headliner.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Chevalier's counterpart of a "Fallen Star" was arrested for begging on the street. He was locked up at the Harrison street police station, and unless some one comes to his rescue he will be sent to the House of Correction.

On the police blotter he is booked as "Michael McCann, 48 years old, actor."

Few persons, if any, will recognize him from this description as one of the famous Allion family of acrobats that entertained audiences at the old Olympic and Lyceum theaters thirty years ago.

They did a perilous trapeze act, also "the flying rings and Roman ladders," which old-time patrons of vaudeville still remember as a "thriller."

"I was used to be one of the top notchers," McCann rambled reminiscences, "but I grew old and became a 'has been'."

"The last work I did was Irish comedy a year ago. In Chicago on the suitcase circuit. I got $10 a week for ten shows a day. As one of the Allions doing two shows a day I used to draw $100 a week."

"One of my old partners, Billy Bannerman, is playing somewhere in Chicago and I know he'd come to the front for me if he knew I was in trouble."

ASKED FOR A COIN; ARRESTED.

"I didn't do anything. I needed banner money and I asked a man for a dime or a nickel. The police, two of them, arrested me."

"Many the dime and quarter that I gave away when I was making money. And nobody ever got 'pinched' for taking it, either."

"There's nobody to blame by myself. I thought I could drink up all the liquor there was in the world, but I found out the distillers kept making it too fast."

"While I lasted I had a good time. That's about the only asset I have besides the reminiscences in which I sometimes indulge. But reminiscences don't get you anything. One job on the suitcase circuit has got 40,000 reminiscences skinned to death."

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Dr. Adrian Molin, general secretary of the Swedish society for the Prevention of Emigration, and his wife, are in Chicago with camera and note book, prying into the living quarters of all Swedish emigrants and Swedish laborers. They will report to a society, recommending what project would be fostered in Sweden to lure its native sons back to the land of their fathers.

Dr. Molin and his wife have already visited many cities in America, but they consider that their investigation is only just begun.

"Over 900,000 Swedes have come to America in the last fifty years," said Dr. Molin, "and this fact has stirred our people to investigate the attractions drawing them to your country. We have plenty of room and fine farming land, but our people, especially the farming classes, are attracted to America in great numbers every year. We don't want them to go, so Mrs. Molin and I are sent over here to find out what it is that they expect to find and do here that we cannot offer them in Sweden."

Mummies of Memphis Are Told About in Paper Read at Meeting.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—One of the most interesting papers thus far at the annual meeting of the British association was "Pindus Petrie's" description of the latest year's excavations in Memphis, where the oldest stone built tombs have been uncovered. These were constructed toward the end of the second dynasty, 3500 hundred years ago. Not until the latter part of the third dynasty did stone built chambers become the general custom, even for kings.

The oldest stone tombs of subjects were those of Mehyum, which were opened by the British school last winter. The great Mastabas of Nefermaat and another noble one close to the pyramid of Sneferu, the interiors of which had been looted, were attacked in a thorough manner.

The mound over one tomb was mined to a depth of forty-five feet and at the bottom was found a closed stone building which had been completely buried without leaving any external opening. The burial, therefore, had taken place before the mound was thrown up, and as the material of the mound was clearly from the masonry waste left in the building of the pyramid adjacent, it must have been made before the burial. The date of the pyramid was 4650 B. C., and it was the earliest private stone tomb that could be dated.

The passages were lofty and the great chamber was roofed with beams of some which weighed forty lbs. each. In a recess at the end of the hall stood a sarcophagus of red granite, the oldest stone sarcophagus known.

The burial was of the greatest interest, as it showed that the body was completely stripped and each bone then was wrapped separately in fine linen. The spine was packed closely with linen and linen was pressed into the empty eye sockets of the skull, which was found with the rest of the bones.

As compared with the usual Egyptian heads, the skull was large, with narrow jaw and extremely orthognathous, and narrow base.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN BUILDING BIG BUSINESS BLOCKS IN OAKLAND

Central Part of the City Is a Scene of Structural Development, Which Will Soon Expand

Temporarily, the scene of greatest business block building activity has been shifted from the west side of Washington street, on Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, to the east side of Broadway on the same two thoroughfares. On the north side of Thirteenth street between Broadway and Franklin street is the seven-story K. A. Perry block, the excavation for whose basement and foundation walls has already been made. Actual construction on this building is awaiting the completion of the erection of the east wall of the Kisch block, adjoining it on the west. When the survey of the lot for the Perry block was made it revealed the fact that the east wall of the Kisch building encroached upon it. Consequently the intruding wall had to be torn down and rebuilt on legitimate ground.

Progress of the Bankers' Hotel

Two and one-half blocks eastward the erection of the big Oakland (Bankers') hotel is in full swing. The massive steel frame of this structure is partly in place. A photograph of it, which is printed in today's TRIBUNE, gives the reader an idea of its magnitude. It is, however, only a suggestion of its height, as it will be shown when finished, as the frame is not yet half way up to its ultimate height.

Polytechnic Engineering College

At the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Madison streets construction of the reinforced concrete six-story building of the new Polytechnic Engineering College has been started, and at the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Oak streets the reinforced concrete foundation of the municipal electricity building is being constructed.

Other Big Buildings in Prospect

These four big buildings east of Broadway fronting on Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets represent an aggregate outlay of approximately $1,250,000. And the opening of Fourteenth street from Alameda to Jackson street, which is now being hastened by the tearing down of the old Brayton residence, which has blocked it up to the present time, will soon be followed by some other large and costly improvements in the immediate vicinity of the big hotel.

Early Revival of Building West of Broadway

In a few months more building activity will be revived, however, in the territory west of Broadway on a vastly larger scale than ever before. Work on the site of the new city hall is to begin in November, when the excavation for the foundation and basement of that structure will begin. And with the advent of the new year will begin the wrecking and removal of the buildings now standing on the site of the magnificent emporium to be erected by the H. C. Capwell Company. There are truly busy times in the building of big business blocks in Oakland close at hand.

OAKLAND'S BANK CLEARINGS HIGH

Oakland tops the list of the clearing house office of the United States this week in the percentage of increase of bank clearings as compared with the corresponding week last year, and in the single instance of the city of its town of Youngstown. The latter shows an increase of 88.6 per cent, Oakland 82.7 per cent. San Francisco shows an increase of 42.9 per cent, Los Angeles 19.3, Portland, Ore., 24.6, Salt Lake 6.5, Tacoma 19, Spokane 10.2 and Sacramento 6.5. Seattle shows a loss of 0.8 per cent.

SYNDICATE'S NEW BUILDING

All of the Structural Steel for Eight Additional Stories Will Be Rolled in 90 Days.

The contract for the structural steel for the eight new stories to be added to the Realty Syndicate building was awarded to a San Francisco firm three weeks ago. The contract provides that the material shall be in place in 150 days from the date of signing it. Donald Searles, Frank M. Smith's confidential secretary, says that it will take the eastern rolling mills, in which the structural steel is being manufactured, at least 90 days to fill the contractor's order. The mills roll only one day in every thirty, and in the event the first day's rolling does not pass inspection, there will be a delay of thirty days. "We have a special inspector at the mills," said Mr. Searles, "and every piece of steel rolled for the Realty Syndicate will be received by the contractor before it is shipped. But when the steel gets on the ground you will see it rushed into position with marvelous rapidity. The foundations and frame of the two stories now in place have been thoroughly tested and have been proved capable of carrying much heavier weight than the additional eight stories will impose on them, so that the contractor will work under a great advantage, as the new work will have some days less of a delay than the usual time. The contractor will be so sure in completing the structure within the term of a year, and that will not be an incentive to push the work as rapidly as it can be done by men and machinery."

OPTIMISTIC SURVEY OF OAKLAND'S PROGRESS AND BIG PROSPERITY

Splendid Display of Extraordinary Growth Which Eastern Visitors Will Soon See in Central Business District

"Oakland will have one of the most interesting displays of substantial business growth to show to Eastern visitors in a few months hence that any city on the Pacific Coast can present," remarked Dennis Searles, the confidential secretary of F. M. Smith, the borax king, to a TRIBUNE representative the other day. "Within the next six months there will be a half dozen or more Class A large business blocks in course of construction simultaneously, representing an outlay of several millions of dollars, besides a long list of smaller business buildings of similar character but of inferior importance only in a comparative sense. It will be an impressive sight to the Eastern visitor and it will cause him to do a lot of thinking. The new city hall, the Bankers' Hotel, the H. C. Capwell Company's big emporium, the Security Bank and Trust Company's building and the eight-story addition to the Realty Syndicate building will all be under way at the same time in the early part of next year. And the improvements started on the water-front will be in full swing at the same time. It will be an impressive sight to the visiting stranger, for these great improvements will be incontestable evidences of substantial growth."

Oakland Leads in Progress and Prosperity

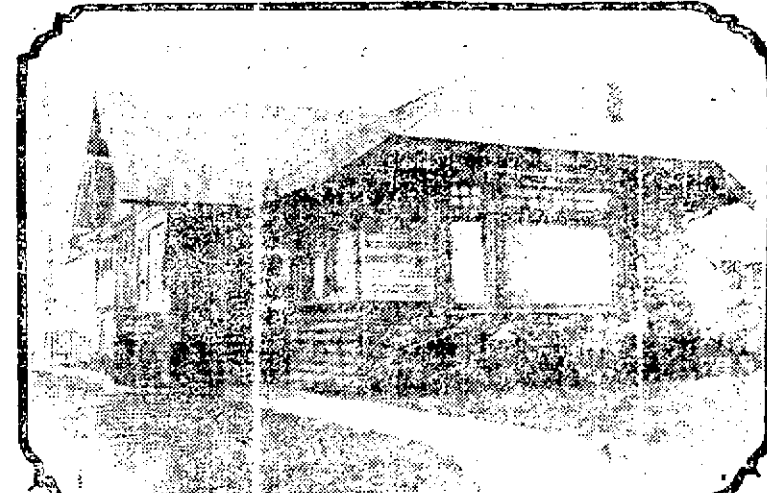

"Do you know that of all the Pacific Coast cities, and, for that matter, of all the more important cities in the United States, Oakland is today the only one that is not overbuilt, and what is more, that it is the only city in the country which is under an actual strain to catch up with the demands of a growing population and commerce. All of the big buildings, that I have mentioned are being built to meet special wants. Take the Realty Syndicate building, for example. It will be an office building, but six of the floors of the ten-story structure will be occupied as soon as it is completed by the F. M. Smith interests. And there are a sufficient number of big corporations that are earnestly seeking to establish themselves in Oakland to fill not only the rentable stories in the Realty Syndicate building, but also every floor in the new Security Bank and Trust Company's building. The Oakland (Bankers') hotel is being built to supply a special purpose and a long-felt want, and its success is assured from the start. The new city hall is to be built for a special purpose, and so is the H. C. Capwell building, adjoining it. And the enormous demand which is being made for modern office buildings will fill many big structures that have not yet been started, but whose erection the rapid growth of population and business here will force. San Francisco has already greatly overbuilt, as is proved by the large number of big buildings which cannot obtain tenants. It will take Oakland many years to catch up, and meantime it will be continuing to grow in population and in commerce and making new demands on the owners of property and on our financial resources."

Big Enterprises Projected in Oakland

"The big enterprises projected on this side of the bay will make tremendous demands on capital. They will develop in a regular order. The completion of one will make the carrying out of others immediately afterward. It is the inevitable result of growth and Oakland is growing faster than any other city on the continent today. The big improvements started on the water-front will attract deep sea commerce here and make Oakland one of the great commercial cities of the country. Nothing can prevent it. It will result in the location of great railroad terminal stations on this side of the bay and it wouldn't surprise me one bit if the Western Pacific should take time by the forelock and be the first to take advantage of the situation in that respect, because the tremendous welcome which Oakland gave it on the opening day of through passenger traffic made a big impression on its managers and opened their eyes to the opportunities which exist here for the up-building of the company's own interests, and they mean to seize them. The developments that will take place in Oakland in the next few years will make the heads of our leading financiers swim, I predict. But we cannot close our eyes to what is inevitable. With a consolidated city and county government, which is certain to come in the next five years, Oakland will, in my judgment, be the biggest and most prosperous city on the Pacific Coast."

Fixed Idea Decees Easy

Do you see it? That girl had the first degree. Erno's delusion. His parents gained a 4-experimental her who they tried scientific experiment on. Yes—she married him. No. She put it in with him. She's back home again.

Well the next thing is the fixed idea degree. I didn't have to look that up. It is dew easy to understand. I suppose you get a fixed idea. You heard that some things so you're positive it's so. You could prove it to be so—but you don't. Just like Erno and Pinnes. Erno's got a fixed idea that he had soul mate. There's just one woman in the world for him. He said—and she wasn't. His wife. So he sent his wife weeping away on a steamer and he and the scientist had a fixed idea that life was going to be long sweet dream for them. The next thing on the program was his Charlie beating the soul mate — who wasn't her soul he lashed with harsh words, etc. He used sticks and furniture and things on what wasn't her soul. So she left him. He tried several more for the reason that he had a fixed idea he was out of the ordinary. At last though he came to the conclusion that his own wife had been his real soul mate. After all he asked her to come back again. Not for him, said I and I don't blame her. Goodness, do you have a man with whiskers? Now, do you understand what a fixed idea is? *

The rest is rudimentary paranoia. It has been said sound heart it. It means derangement, madness chronic form of insanity developing in a neuropsychotic constitution presenting systematized delusions of more or less definite scope while in all other directions there may appear a fair amount of mental health. The prognosis is extremely bad.

Neuropsychopathic means having weak nerve centers.

Neurosis means knowing beforehand

Third Degree Folks Crazy.
People having the third degree you see are a little bit crazy. They're not mentally crazy or crazy at the roots. For instance the way I have it figured out a young man might fall in love with a woman old enough to be his grandmother. Perhaps he'd be a perfect bright young man—or at least seem to be bright—on all of her subjects, but he'd have to be a barometer about this grandmother person. He'd look at young girls and wonder how they should like—and think at young girls' giggly things they were compared to his darling grandmother. No matter what color their hair might be I'd think how much prettier it would be to have it be gray and if they had dear little dainty feet he'd think how much more sensible and comfortable they were charming than his if they wore comfortable shoes and with flat footed.

That's how I've got that figured out and I think I'm high. •

Psychic neurasthenia is the fourth degree. Psychics of the soul so know Neurasthenia is having to do with the nerves. So it can't mean anything else.

A black and white manga-style illustration. The image is split vertically. On the left, a dark, shadowed figure is visible. On the right, a character with a large, ornate headpiece and a robe with vertical stripes is shown. A white bird, possibly a dove, is flying in the center between the two figures. The background is filled with dense, stippled shading.

Psychic Emotive Obsession

patiently the day of thy release and then we shall tread the Ellysian fields together

• He was a man who was janitor of the church where papa preached once and when he told my father dad had a fit! He doesn't believe in spirits that come back and talk to you you know. I'm quite sure though that that man had the fourth degree

Do I make it plain to you?

Example of the Fifth Degree.
The fifth is episodic symptoms of hereditary degeneracy.
The way I get this—sounds like a medium doost it—is that people with this degree every once in a while have a sort of spasm of loving somebody whom they oughtn't to love. Somehow I know Thomas of New York and I at least seem to be the ones to make this degree love to me.
You know Mr. Thomas has a lovely wife and I he thinks an awful lot of her. They had a beautiful home—and all that but every once in a while Thomas's mpy had to go out and get some girl—champagne and supper and then take them joy riding—and that's how he got injured—horreracing and all—and now he's poor.

Well I bet you anything that Mr Thomas father or grandfather or great great grandfather or some thing used to have the same sort of spells. He had one of his grandfathers was a drunkard and went to class meeting every Sunday for forty-nine Sunday out of the year. The other three he got drunk and was a regular old Harry. I bet you anything you don't almost swear that was the way of it. Psychic emotive obsession. That's the sixth.

You see in this degree your soul goes crazy and your mind gets pained and even exasperated and anybody starts in to tell you so you can understand.

These are really the six degrees of love the way I see it. But I'll go them and I suppose he perfectly right. But I'd like to know what's become of the old fashioned degree I've always read about. You know the kind—when a perfectly darling man falls in love with a pretty girl and they make up their minds to marry—and do—and live happily for ever after. It doesn't seem to me that I've ever known the proper sort of love come anywhere near that. I believe it's rather only know about one kind of love and have that the kind you read about in books. It seems to me it would be a lot more satisfactory. Goodness knows if ever I fall in love I want to do it in the good old way. Otherwise I'd rather keep severely out of it.

The Healthfulness of Flirting.

About flirting though I can see where it might be healthy. Not that I ever would. I should say not. But just the same—

This President Hall says that if it were not for Cupid and his little quiver of arrows the golf course, tennis canoeing and all other sports wouldn't be at all. He says that all these things would be so tame that girls wouldn't think of doing them if there weren't chances of getting up a lovely flirtation with some good looking man.

It is one of the things that was never came out of my head. It looks quite logical to me. I should think that a girl who liked men terribly well would be sort of lonesome without them. Myself I enjoy parties and things of the kind more if I am going to be with some boys there. It gives you a sort of incentive to dress and fix your hair prettily and act bright and so on. I think so.

It is true. If it weren't for the chance of flirting at outdoor sports girls would sit in the house and read novels about other girls who did get frantically love made at them.

That's one way it's healthy in. Then I could imagine that it might stimulate the mind. Suppose for instance that two girls are desperately in love with the same boy. They are quarrelling. They're both going to try to win him and they're going to do everything in their power to make themselves just as attractive as they possibly can to him. If he will read what they read too and improve themselves. If he likes art and music they cultivate a taste for it. And all that sort of thing. Don't you see?

Her Emotional Safety Valve

And on President Hall says flirting is a woman's emotional safety valve. If she didn't flirt she'd go crazy. Perhaps if the women suffragists who are always getting into trouble would flirt a little more and think more about what their husbands would like or if the unmarried one would pick out some man and try to make him think them atractive they wouldn't be everlastingly getting into jail and having to be bailed out.

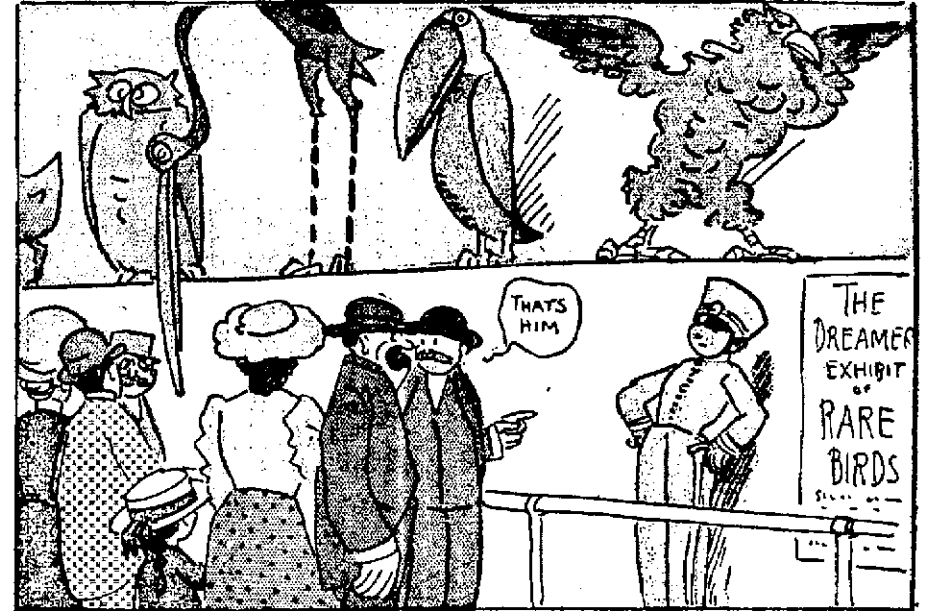

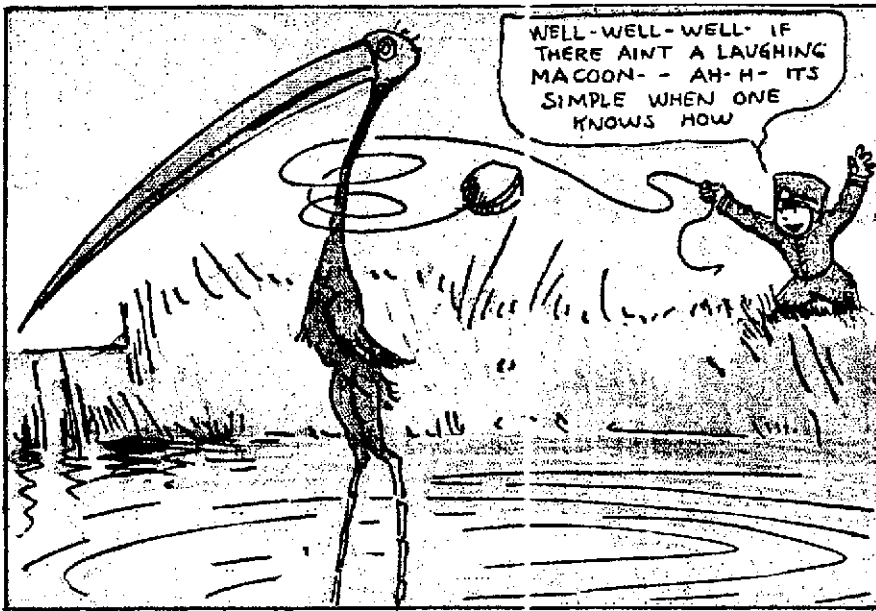

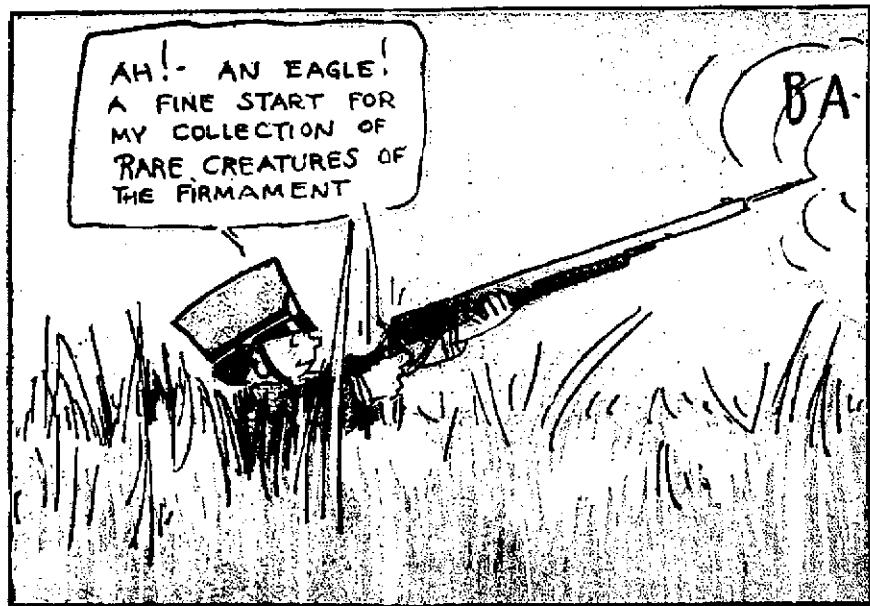

It's a pretty deep subject and I suppose I've tired you out but really these are things every woman ought to know. That's why I've been telling you DON'T SOME PEOPLE ASK THE BIGGEST FOOL QUESTIONS?

See that searchlight flashing its powerful rays across the bounding blue sea? Well, it can only penetrate the darkness. Thrown upon a solid substance, its light is reflected back from the surface. It is not capable of revealing the secrets which ever are going on behind closed doors. In that respect it is vastly subservient to the little electric eye I once invented, that could look through iron doors, granite walls, and almost into a person's thoughts.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright 1910 by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

An electric eye that will defy solid substance, that will look through walls, that will penetrate to the uttermost depths of a man's soul, thought I one day in my study, never has been conceived. I therefore set to work on a motor-battery—something different, you will perceive—in fundamental principle.

This delving eye, of course, I meant to employ only for my own amusement, little dreaming that I would thwart one of the most dastardly plots to ruin a principality ever hatched. I finished the contrivance, which resembled a large monocle, and fitting it to my own eye, set the motor buzzing. It worked to perfection.

Then I put it to a further test. Holding the eye in my hand I placed a coin under the table at which I sat. Turning on the current, the solid wood took on the transparency of glass, and there on the rug at my feet, through the table, I could see the coin. I gasped at the brilliancy of my achievement.

With the eye carefully concealed in my pocket, I sauntered out upon the street. I walked a long distance and coming to the walls of the fortress the eye in my pocket showed me, though my back was turned, three desperate looking characters standing closely huddled together just outside the battlements.

I stood there and nonchalantly smoked my cigar, my hand in my pocket, my fingers wrapped about the eye, the wires of which led to the frame wrapped about my head but hidden beneath my hat, thus connecting the electric eye with the optic nerve. As I looked, the three raised their hands and took the oath of allegiance.

Instantly I felt there was some dark deed afoot, and my suspicions were aroused when the three slunk away, walking rapidly down the street. I kept within a few blocks of them, the electric eye, ever watchful, never losing sight of them. Thus I was able to trace them to their rendezvous and spy upon them.

I stationed myself outside the stone wall behind which I felt sure they were plotting some diabolical scheme, and turned the eye on duty. They were in a small room, bending over a table, and closely studying diagrams of the fortress. The eye sprang a surprise then by whispering to me the word "bomb." Ah, I knew!

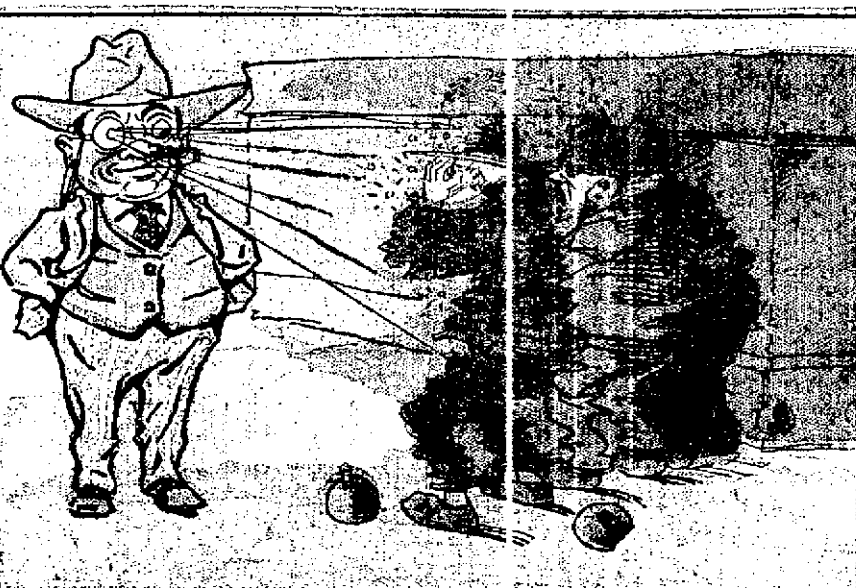

I was startled, and believing I had fancied that the eye had spoken, I shifted my position a few feet farther along the wall and again, with the eye beneath my coat, turned on its penetrating rays. What it divulged was a den of bearded men rapidly turning out huge bombs. I smiled; it was not my imagination—the eye had spoken.

I sat down and drew from my pocket a current magazine which I started to read, keeping the marvelous electric eye scrutinizing the various rooms of the building. Soon the trio I first had seen tiptoed down the steps inside the building, each carrying in his two hands one of the enormous bombs.

I got up and took a position at the corner of the wall as they emerged through the front door. In my eye I adjusted the monocle and looked through the big stones of the masonry as they approached the spot on which I stood. "You never will blow up that fortress," thought I. They came on, ignorant of my proximity.

As they turned the corner I confronted them, my electric eye gleaming at them, transfixing them with its strange, unnatural power. They stopped dead in their tracks, shivering like men suffering from ague, the great bombs falling lightly to the ground at their feet. Thus I held them, speechless, powerless to move a single muscle.

Taking from my pocket a hundred feet or so of heavy log chain, I bound them tightly together. Then with the eye focused on them from my pocket, I led them to the fortress and gave them into the custody of the generalissimo. I know not what befell them, but I do recall that I bound the motor-battery to my little electric eye.
